

June 26 Auction Date for Minnewaska

KINGSTON
The 10,500 acre Minnewaska Mountain tract will go on the auction block June 26 at the court house on Wall Street. Unless its owner, Kenneth B. Phillips, accepts an offer from the state or makes a private sale before then.

The auction could be the last step in foreclosure of a $1,300,000 mortgage held by the Empire National Bank.

According to Augustus W. Bennet of Newburgh, attorney for the bank, Phillips is free to make a private sale (or an agreement with the state) up to the moment the auction is called.

Bennet initiated legal action toward the public sale in Kingston on Thursday when he obtained a Supreme Court order authorizing the auction. Bennet said he will begin immediate public advertising. The law requires that the sale be held within 28 to 35 days after the date of the first publication. The legal notice will be published in The Daily Freeman Wednesday.

Bennet said that if there are no takers at the auction, the bank would be forced to put up the amount necessary to acquire the title. It would then make an effort to make a private sale in order to get back its mortgage money.

State representatives have been trying for several months to come to terms with Phillips. He has said that he has had private offers that are more to his advantage than those tendered by the state. The state can not bid at the public auction, but in the event that no one else does, it could negotiate a purchase price with the bank at a later date.

Phillips, reportedly, said he has been offered $1,947,000 for 7,600 acres of land, by the state. He said that the state would not agree to his slightly higher price. Phillips noted that the state recently bought 2,500 acres of land in Dutchess and Putnam Counties, paying $3,000,000 for it.

Assemblyman H. Clark Bell and State Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr. were instrumental in obtaining $1,000,000 in state funds for the purchase of the land for a state park.

Conservationists have been concerned that Phillips might sell the land in small parcels to developers of tract homes. It was felt that that type of development would mar the scenic beauty of the area.

Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress, the seven-county planning group, has also been active in attempts to retain the area for a state park and recreation area and to prevent it from falling into the hands of private developers who might abuse the area.

Pattern conducted a tour of the area along with some 40 officials in July and all seemed to agree that the scenic beauty of the area should be preserved. The bank has been lauded for its patience in holding off on the auction as long as possible. An auction was originally set for May 1.

The state, in offering $1,947,000 for the land, almost double its appropriation, apparently had been counting on additional funds from the federal government for the preservation of the site. The Division of Parks of the State Conservation Department has made application for a grant from the Outdoor Recreation agency of the Interior Department.

The Minnewaska Mountain House and resort was established by the Smiley family in 1897. Phillips, the present owner and president of the Lake Minnewaska Corp., was employed by the Smileys from 1927 to 1955 and was resort manager from 1942 to 1953.

It will take $1,500,000 to cover the mortgage and incidental expenses in addition to an $80,000 tax lien against the property.

The auction is set for noon on June 26 at the county courthouse.

13 Lebanese Civilians Killed

Retaliation for Guerrilla Attack

By United Press International

The Lebanese government said today Israeli guns firing into Lebanon in retaliation for the Arab guerrilla ambush of a school bus have killed 13 civilians and wounded 32, many of them women and children.

An announcement from Beirut said the Israelis opened up on four Lebanese border settlements after the ambush Friday killed 11 Israelis, eight of them school children, and wounded 21, two of them not expected to live.

Lebanon said the retaliatory Israeli barrage began at 8:30 a. m. Friday, 25 minutes after the ambush, and lasted five hours. UPI correspondent Peter D. Lynch spent three hours in the border region during that time and reported no such barrages.

Beirut's report came as Israeli officials from Premier Golda Meir on down were vowing revenge for the border ambush, blaming the Lebanese government for harboring the guerrillas. Lebanon's president, Charles Helou, discussed the border crisis with his cabinet Friday night.

"The arm of the Israeli defense forces is long," Israel's deputy premier, Yigal Allon, told mourners at the funeral for the ambush victims. "Its blow is devastating. Those responsible for this bloodbath will not get away with it."

The wails of mourners almost drowned out Allon's speech. "Revenge . . . vengeance . . . We know the Arabs, they only understand the arm of force," they shouted.

"The Lebanese government . . . bears full responsibility for this murder," Allon said.

Mrs. Meir told the nation in a radio broadcast: "As long as the Lebanese government evades responsibility for what is happening in her territory . . . the Israeli government will maintain its right to defend, with all the means at its disposal, its towns, villages, cities and citizens."

About 10,000 South Vietnamese troops and hundreds of tanks and armored personnel carriers pushed northward from the front that Task Force 318, driving northward toward the plantation's southern edge, killed 12 Khmer Rouge, the Viet Cong's Cambodian allies, and captured 13.

To the east of the plantation, 25 other enemy troops were reported killed.

The Senate plans to vote on whether to modify a proposal to curb U. S. military activities in Cambodia and Sen. J. W. Fulbright has demanded the Pentagon quit supplying television stations. Stories on page 14.

The main objective of the drive is to destroy the regiment, but the South Vietnamese forces also hope to link up with Vietnamese civilian irregulars and open up Route 7 east of Kompong Cham.

The South Vietnamese task force moving along Route 7 had advanced by midafternoon today to within 12 miles of Kompong Cham. The city is about 35 miles from the Vietnamese border and 50 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

U.S. advisers reportedly pulled out of the operation before the Vietnamese crossed the 21.7 mile limit of penetration set for American troops by President Nixon.

The drive kicked off the fifth phase of South Vietnamese operations along Route 1, the highway between Phnom Penh and Saigon.

The City of Kingston has embarked on its 1970 street repair program and will spend a maximum of $84,856 between now and the end of September on 12 streets in various sections of the city.

The designations were arrived at through the joint efforts of the mayor, the 13 aldermen, Cole and the Board of Public Works. The largest project is a $16,287 repaving job on West O'Reilly Street from Twaalfskill to Wilbur Avenue.

Special

Paving adjustments are planned for Stickles Avenue, Merilina Avenue and Fairview Avenue at a cost of $5,000.

In addition to the streets in the street program, the Board of Public Works has resurfaced East Chester Street from Hasbrouck Avenue to Broadway.

Superintendent Cole emphasized that the cost estimates for the various streets are maximum estimates. In addition, Cole said, crews would be on the job making various minor repairs such as pot holes throughout the city.

Mayor Koenig, in drawing up his street program, asked each of the 13 aldermen to submit a list of three streets for repair on a priority basis in their respective wards. That list was then reviewed by the mayor, Cole and the Board of Public Works in arriving at the 1970 street program.

"To suggest that I am guilty of this type of incendiarism is in keeping with the irresponsibility that The Times manages to achieve on its editorial page," Agnew said. "And it is appropriate that the slur be made by Mr. Reston, who delights in calling other people demagogues." Reston is a vice president and columnist for The Times and won two Pulitzer Prizes.
"But for pure unbridled invective, you will have to look far to beat that excitable columnist, television commentator and former ambassador to Finland, Carl T. Rowan," Agnew said. "Mr. Rowan might once have used diplomatic language, but he long ago lost the art and his rhetoric is anything but cool."
On militant students and faculty, Agnew said:
"It is my honest opinion that this hard core of faculty and students should be identified and dismissed from the otherwise healthy body of the college community lest they, like a cancer, destroy it."
He said the "isolationists in the Senate" are trying "at every turn to thwart the president's efforts to conclude this country's involvement in Vietnam."
"The president desperately needs a Republican Congress to replace these neoisolationist views and remove the willful obstruction of his programs."

Relatives of Ill Queen

Rt. 209 Victims in Gypsy Clan

ALBANY—The two victims of Wednesday night's fatal truck crash on Route 209 near Cottekill Road, Marlbtown, have been reported to be members of a large gypsy family whose Queen is in critical condition at the Albany Medical Center.

The youths, identified by Kingston State Police as Frank Mitchell, 17 and Mike Mitchell, 16, cousins whose last known address was Rural Route Dixie Highway, Louisville, Kentucky, are related to Mrs. Ruby Mitchell, Queen of the Gypsies. "Queen Ruby" has attracted hundreds of visitors since entering the hospital a few weeks ago with a constrictive heart ailment. Many of the members of the colorful clan have been in attendance night and day, while other visitors have been listed as strictly spectators.

Mrs. Mitchell was listed on the critical list Friday night, but a hospital spokesman said that she would probably be going home soon.

Meanwhile, more than 200 gypsies, most of them children, filed by the two closed coffins of the accident victims as services for the two cousins were staged Friday at the Chicorelli Funeral Home on Delaware Avenue. Two elders of the clan were trying to bring a Catholic priest to the home to bless the bodies before they are transferred to Everett, Mass., for burial.

Louis Mitchell, father of Mike, told of the deaths of her two relatives until her release from the hospital.
The two youths, doing road construction in Ulster County, were pinned in the wreckage Lake City, Florida. Police believe that the truck's gas tank carrying a 100-gallon tank of asphalt sealer, struck a tree and exploded in flames on Route 209, about one-half mile north of Cottekill Road, Marlbtown.

Other elders of the clan stated that Mrs. Mitchell would not be carrying a 100-gallon tank of asphalt sealer, struck a tree and exploded in flames on Route 209, about one-half mile north of Cottekill Road, Marlbtown.

The truck is registered in Lake City, Florida. Police believe that the truck's gas tank carrying a 100-gallon tank of asphalt sealer, struck a tree and exploded in flames on Route 209, about one-half mile north of Cottekill Road, Marlbtown.

Woodcock, newly elected president of the UAW's successor, voted the UAW's proposals to make General Motors Corp. more responsible to consumer groups, members of "Campaign GM" say they have just begun to fight.

"We look forward to seeing you next year," spokesman Philip Moore told James M. Roche, chairman of the board for GM, following Friday's annual stockholders' meeting here. Some 40 "Campaign GM" speakers called for increased corporate responsibility during a record six-hour, 25-minute meeting.
The group's two proposals received a surprising 6 million proxy votes but were buried beneath 227 million proxies supporting GM management. "Campaign GM" had advocated expanding GM's board of directors with three consumer-oriented members and setting up a watchdog "committee for corporate responsibility."

"We didn't win a victory," Roche said. "We won a vote of confidence from our shareholders. We could lose that very quickly unless we respond properly to the needs of the company and the community."

"Campaign GM" spokesmen had claimed only about 300,000 votes from institutional shareholders and pointed out the difference came from small individual shareholders.

New York Nine Spoils Dean's Chance, 7-4

HUSTLIN' HORACE — It appears that Eddie Leon, Cleveland second baseman, has Horace Clark, of New York, out trying to steal in fourth inning (top). However, Clark slid into Leon's arm, jarring the ball loose (bottom). Leon remained in the game after first aid from trainer. Umpire George Anthony calls the play. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Dean Chance Night turned into a nightmare for the Cleveland right-hander with his Indians' teammates acting like strangers and the New York Yankees getting all the gifts.
Chance, obtained by the Indians from Minnesota over the winter, was the recipient of a welcome home night from his friends in his hometown of Wooster, Ohio, but lasted only three innings as the Yankees whipped the Indians 7-4 Friday night.
The 28-year-old Chance, who was ripped for three first-inning runs, including a two-run homer by Roy White out was victimized by a leaky Cleveland defense in the third when the Yankees added three more runs on three errors.

In other American League games, Baltimore ripped Boston 7-4, California edged Minnesota 3-2, Oakland nipped Chicago 9-8, Detroit edged Washington 3-2 and Kansas City thumped Milwaukee 6-3.
In all the Indians made five errors. All three third-inning runs off Chance, 1-4, who was rocked for eight hits in his brief stint, were unearned.

The Yanks, on the other hand, "were great defensively," Dark said. Gene Michael (Yankee shortstop) made three plays that were on the verge of being truly great.
Winner Fritz Peterson struggled to his sixth victory against two defeats but needed sixth-inning relief from Jack Aker. Tony Horton had a solo homer for the Indians.
Boog Powell's 12th homer of the season broke a sixth-inning deadlock and the Orioles added a pair in the eighth on hits by Brooks Robinson and Dave Johnson. Powell added a pair of doubles while George Scott ripped a homer and two doubles and Tony Conigliaro stroked four straight hits for the Red Sox.

Ken McMullen and Jim Spencer drilled home runs as the Angels snapped Minnesota's winning streak at seven and edged to within one-half game of first place in the West.
McMullen and Spencer each connected off loser Jim Perry, 6-3, with the eventual winning run coming across on left-hand-er Clyde Wright's seventh in-ning single. Wright, 6-2, needed relief help in the eighth from Paul Doyle, who surrendered a solo homer to Rick Renick.

Felipe Alou's two-run double enabled the A's to tie the White Sox at 8-8 in the eighth inning and moments later Alou scored the winner as Chicago's right fielder John Matias dropped Don Mincher's fly ball.
The A's overcame an 8-1 Chicago lead with four-run rallies in the sixth and eighth innings. Chicago had a six-run first, capped by Ed Herrmann's three-run homer and Carlos May added a two-run belt in the fourth.
Willie Horton's two-run double in the third inning, following Mike Epstein's costly error, helped the Tigers gain their victory over the Senators. Al Kaline drove in the deciding run with a seventh-inning sacrifice fly while Bernie Allen had a solo homer for the Senators.

Bob Oliver drove in a pair of runs with a bases-loaded single and scored two tallies in the Royals' triumph; Mike Walton, the Brewers' hard hitting outfielder, drew five straight bases on balls.

Old Met Sinks New Breed

By United Press International
For one brief moment Friday night, Jim Hickman of the Chicago Cubs proved beyond a doubt that he was the last of the original Mets.
Unfortunately for the modern New York Mets, Hickman has succeeded in leaving most of those memories behind him.
Hickman, 33, the last of the original Mets still playing in the fifth to pace the Cubs to a 6-4 victory.

The triumph enabled the Cubs to boost their first-place lead to 1 1/2 games over the Mets, who dropped to third in the National League's Eastern Division, a half game behind runner-up St. Louis.
Hickman, who came to the Cubs from the Dodgers' minor league organization in 1968, was with the Mets from 1962-66 but never batted higher than .257. This year, he is off to the best start in his career with six homers, 17 runs batted in and a .293 batting average.

Other Results

In other NL action, Cincinnati beat Houston 5-2, St. Louis topped Philadelphia 6-3, Montreal defeated Pittsburgh 6-3, Atlanta blanked Los Angeles 1-0, and San Francisco routed San Diego 9-4.

Jim Merritt, aided by home runs by Tony Perez and Bernie Carbo, became the major league's first nine-game winner as the Reds increased their lead in the Western Division to 6 1/2 games over second-place Los Angeles. Carbo's homer, which hit off the concrete facing of the fifth tier, was the longest ever hit by a lefthanded batter in the Astrodome.

Julian Javier's three-run double in the eighth inning broke a 3-3 tie and enabled the Cardinals to beat the Phillies, Joe Torre homered.
Mack Jones hit a two-run homer and Jim Fahey belted a two-run triple in the Expos' eighth win during their last 11 games. Bill Stoneman went the distance.

Henry Aaron's run-scoring single in the third inning and the five-hit pitching of Pat Jarvis paced the Braves' victory. The win was the first for Jarvis over the Dodgers in two years.
Ken Henderson belted a grand slam homer and Dick Dietz added a two-run shot in the Giants' triumph. Robertson went the distance for the Giants, to record his fourth victory of the season.

What Is It, Curt?

NEW YORK (AP) — What does Curt Flood want?
That's the question that has been kicked around this week outside the courtroom of Judge Irving Ben Cooper, who is hearing the suit against baseball in which the former St. Louis outfielder contends the sport operates in restraint of trade through the reserve system.
In developing their case, Flood's attorneys have called on Flood, Jackie Robinson, Hank Greenberg and Jim Brosnan, all former players, who condemned the reserve system for being weighted in favor of the owners and, therefore, unfair to the players.

They also contend that under that provision all talent would gravitate to the wealthiest clubs.
Miller has added two qualifying provisos to attack those problems:
After the player had established his market value, his

Jeff Thompson Slams Home Run

RED HOOK
Jeff Thompson cracked a two-run homer in the third inning with Gene Gardner aboard to help Red Hook High School defeat Haldane, 5-1, in the last game of the season for the Hookers. Red Hook was the home club in the game played yesterday.

The winners finished the Bi-Valley League with an 8-5 record and were 10-9 overall.
Thompson was also the winning pitcher, allowing just five hits. John Mattern pitched a three-hitter and lost as Thompson's clout and errors cost the visitors the decision.

Weiskopf in Lead

ATLANTA (AP) — Chuck Courtney, a quiet Californian, had barely begun his second round in the $125,000 Atlanta Golf Classic Friday when tall Tom Weiskopf took control at the halfway point with an 11-under-par 133.

Courtney, a 29-year-old bachelor who joined the PGA tour in 1964, fashioned his second straight 67 over the hilly, 7,053-yard Atlanta Country Club course as sweltering 90-degree heat baked the fairways, greens and players for the second straight day.
Courtney's 134 total gave him second place by two shots over a trio deadlocked at 136—Gary Player, Tommy Aaron and Dan Sikes, whose 65 was the low score of the second round.
Asked if he hoped to catch

Bob Lunn in 1968, who sank an 80-foot putt for an eagle on the 577-yard No. 8, and Lee Elder stood at 138.
Eight players were lodged at 139.

Red Wings Win Over Syracuse

By United Press International
The surging Rochester Red Wings won their ninth game in 10 starts Friday night, an 8-2 victory over Syracuse, to maintain a two-game lead in the International League.
Rochester's Frank Bertina scattered eight hits for his fourth victory without a loss, Don Baylor hit a homer for the Red Wings and George Pena cracked a homer for the losers.
In other IL action, Tidewater edged Louisville, 2-1, and Richmond trimmed Columbus, 3-2. Toledo at Buffalo was postponed because of rain.

Overlooked, generally, has been the fact that no one is calling for the total abolition of the reserve system—only modification. That's what Flood wants—a more reasonable and less restrictive system that corrects the owner-player imbalance.
During the week, Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, the organization that is footing the bill for Flood's suit, took the witness stand and told the U.S. District Court hearing what the players and Flood want.
He did so by talking about the modifications that have been proposed by the players in contract negotiations with the owners. If this trial were to establish a ruling that ultimately led to revision of the reserve system it likely would take its form from the base of those suggestions.
The main provision calls for a clause that instead of containing an option on a player's service for life, reduces it to a specific number of years, the player after that juncture "to be given an opportunity to establish his market value by obtaining bids from other clubs."
The owners contend it would cost the club that originally signed the player the money it had spent in training the player.

Sawyer Nine Win Fourth

WAPPINGERS FALLS
Saugerties High School's baseball team capitalized on some costly errors and timely hits to defeat host Roy C. Ketcham High School, 3-1, in a Dutchess County Scholastic League Central Section battle Friday. It was the fourth win in a row for the Sawyers who are now 5-7 in the league and 8-9 overall. Gary Silinovich was the winning pitcher, hurling a three-hitter. Marty Dubinsky took the loss although he struck out 11 Sawyers.

The winners scored two in the third as Dee White reached on a bunt single and stole second. Gerry Malgieri walked. The Sawyers then tried a double steal and the catcher's throw went over the head of the third baseman, scoring White. Malgieri came on to score when the ball rolled through the legs of the left fielder.
Saugerties added one more in the seventh as Skip VanBlarcum walked, moved to second on Bob Todaro's pinch-hit single, went to third on a fielder's choice and scored on a grounder by Rich Lack.

The Sawyer JVs registered another important win, beating Ketcham, 2-1 as Lynn Barlow singled home Craig Wolsen in the seventh. Jim Meyers was the winning pitcher.

Joe Skipp Shows Way For Highlander's Nine

NEW PALTZ
Joe Skipp proved to be an exception to the rule that "Pitchers don't hit," yesterday, as he drove in three runs on two hits in three trips and pitched a four-hitter as Highlander bombed host New Palatz, 5-0 in an Ulster County Athletic League contest.

The winning hurler drove in two runs on a single in the first inning. Doug Geer walked, stole second and held as Tony Biancardi reached on an error. Both runners moved up when another error was committed, setting the stage for a single by Skipp.
Joltin' Joe drove in another marker in the fifth as Geer again walked, made second as

Hartwick At Kickers

MORGAN HILL coached State University New Hartwick College of Oneonta, Paltz before accepting the post at Hartwick.

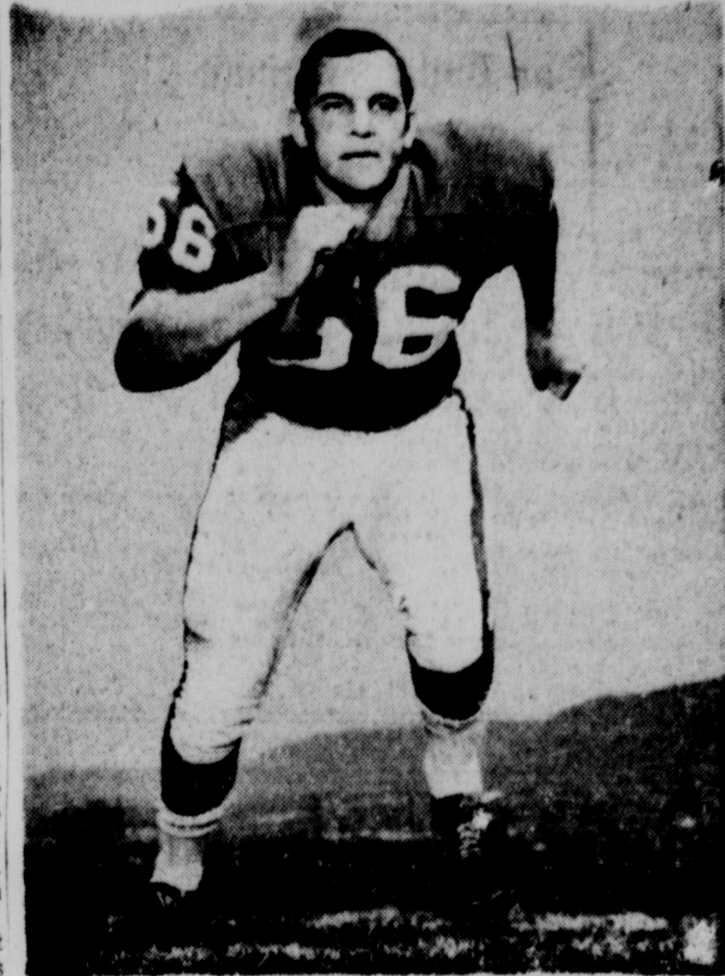

"Liekoski and most of his college teammates will be in the Hartwick lineup," said Froehlich. "For our part we will introduce several area high school players and most of our young veterans."

The exhibition is the first step in the program designed to localize the Kickers for the 1970-71 campaign in the Premier Division of the German-American Soccer Association which gets under way in mid-September.

The Kickers have just completed a disastrous year in the powerful Major Division of the GASA where they had to compete against paid professionals, many of them recruited from Europe.

The Hartwick announcement follows on the heels of plans to stage two major exhibitions at Oehler's Field this summer. On Aug. 2 and 9, the Sport Club will defend its title in the annual Hudson Valley Soccer Tournament.

Two teams from Munich, West Germany and the Hoboken Sports Club of New Jersey join the Kickers in an international tournament, also during the month of August.

Former PHS Star Joins Cleveland

DETROIT (UPI) — Relief pitcher Fred Lasher was traded for the winners with a 6.0, 6.0, by the Detroit Tigers to the Cleveland Indians Friday for pitcher Russ Nagelson and minor league pitcher Bill Rohr.

The sidearming Lasher appeared in 11 games with the Minnesota Twins in 1963 but didn't surface to the majors again until 1967, when Detroit acquired him.

Lasher, 28, has been in 145 games over two full seasons and parts of two others. He has a 10-6 lifetime mark with a 3.38 earned run average.

The night handout was 13 with three saves and a 5.00 ERA so far this season. He had appeared in 12 games with nine innings pitched.

Replacing Lasher on the Tigers' staff will be pitcher Daryl Patterson, Jim Campbell, Detroit general manager, announced. Patterson has spent most of the time since May 1 at Ft. Stewart, Ga., on active duty but returned to the Tigers Sunday.

Campbell said Nagelson, who hit .125 in 16 games with the Indians this season, would report to Detroit's Toledo farm club in the International League with Rohr, a lefty who had a 4 mark at Wichita in the American Association.

Marlboro Beats Pine Bush Team

PINE BUSH Rich Alexander bombed a three-run homer with no outs in the bottom of the seventh inning to bring host Pine Bush within two runs of Marlboro.

But Charlie Jones, working in relief of winning pitcher Rich Gerentine, got the next three outs as the Dukes posted a 10-8 win in an Ulster County Athletic League game Friday.

Brian Kelly had a three-run homer for the Dukes off losing pitcher Russ Smith, while Dan Passante drove in two runs with two doubles to pace the visitors.

Gerentine, Passante and Lou Rhoades had two hits apiece for the winners. Alexander went three-for-four and scored two markers for the Bushmen.

Records Set At Coleman

KINGSTON Visiting New York Military Academy handed John A. Coleman High School's track team a 73-62 loss Friday, despite some record breaking performances by the Statesmen. It was the last meet of the initial season for coach Les Lombardi's thin-clad, who finished the season with a record of 1-8.

"It was a satisfying season in some ways, not so in others," said the Coleman Mentor. Our win and the closeness of the scores towards the end of the season shows that we improved immensely. We had a team made up of largely freshmen and sophomores in this, our first season and the boys did a good job. We will be better competition next year," he concluded.

Chris Seche, one of the few seniors on the Coleman club, established a school and track record in the 880-yard run as he blazed across the finish line in 2:16.2. Seche, closing out a fine career at the local school.

Sawyers Dump Ketcham Squad

SAUGERTIES Saugerties High School's tennis team took the first three singles matches to decision visiting Roy C. Ketcham High, 3-2 Friday in a Dutchess County Scholastic League match. The Sawyer netmen are now 6-4 in league play and have an 8-7 overall mark.

Saugerties travels to Red Hook Tuesday for the final DCSL contest of the 1970 season. In singles action, Carl Ferrone set the pace for the rest of the Sawyers as he defeated Joe Floyd, 8-6. Herb Lenz followed with an 8-4 decision over Bruce Kapner and Cliff Ferrone, Carl's brother, downed Mike Decker, 9-7.

Sawyer Coach Jack Welton, with the victory sewed up, gave his regulars a break and played some reserves in the doubles. Floyd and Kapner, two front-line men for the visitors, defeated Mark Warfel and Dave Sawutz, 8-0, while Decker and Steve Kline topped Darrell Whitaker and Tim Woycik, 8-4.

In exhibition play, Sawyer Karl Sjursen defeated Bob LaPolle, 8-1, while Mark Herb finished for the host club with an 8-2 win over Dennis Regan.

Newburgh Jayvees Stop Kingston, 5-3

NEWBURGH Newburgh Jayvees converted five hits into five runs to defeat Kingston High Jayvees, 5-3.

Mark Palladino went the distance for Kingston, striking out eight. Charlie Yankoglu slammed two singles and John Longendyke hit a double for the holes for his score.

Kingston Scores Again

KINGSTON Kingston High School's golf team ran its record to 9-2-2 on the season and avenged an earlier tie as the Maroon Linksman defeated visiting Fallsburgh, 11-1 Friday. The non-league encounter was played at the par-35 Twaalfskill Course. Kingston hosts Roosevelt in another non-league contest on Tuesday.

Doug Tataru was medalist for the day as he paced the winners with a 2 1/2-1/2 decision over Ron Hunkley, who had a 42, good for 1/2 point. Tataru birdied the par four 300-yard first hole and the par four 248-yard fourth en route to his 37.

In other matches, Joe Bostic carded a 38, good for three points, over Tom Halchek, 50-0; Bill Chappell 42-3 over Rich Halchek, 46-0; Mark Brown 47-2, over Len Lewis, 51-1/2.

Terry Allred, playing as fifth man for Kingston, hit an even par-35 in his round, but couldn't count it in the scoring. Allred bogied the par-three 210-yard third, but came back to birdie the long par-five seventh, hitting pars on the rest of the holes for his score.

Soviets and Protestors

The son of privileged Communist party member, Vladimir Bukovsky, was a bright and promising scholar when he discovered repressions and inequities in the "classless society." At 17, in his final high school year, he published a satirical humor magazine and was expelled and told he could never study in a Soviet University.

In the last ten years, Bukovsky spent six of his years in Soviet prisons, labor camps and insane asylums. In between, he attended college under assumed names until he was found out and expelled again. Always, when he was freed, he found ways of returning to school for further study.

Now 27 and free, he is under surveillance, and expects KGB agents will apprehend him again. His parents were reprimanded for "failure to raise the boy in the proper spirit."

From our viewpoint, Bukovsky only wanted freedom to pursue his studies. He has not disrupted classes or led revolts. Even his teenage magazine was a humorous protest, not designed to sabotage the authorities.

But the Soviet takes no chances on protestors of any kind. They toe the line or else prison, labor camp, insane asylum. Our young protestors who think it is so bold to demean our symbols and institutions should see what would happen to them had they raised their voices in the country their leaders hold up as an example for them, and whose cause they serve.

Safety Not Style First

Complaints to the President's Committee on Consumer Interests have tripled in the last year. Most concern automobiles and appliances, according to Elizabeth Hanford, executive director of the committee. She questioned the assumption that consumers want glamour rather than safety, and style rather than durability.

Saying that there should be no excuse for refrigerators with motors installed backward, $1,300 furnaces that won't work and faulty parts in electric ovens, Miss Hanford said too many things go wrong in the market place today, which effective quality control systems or effective engineering could solve.

Auto buyers' complaints concern warranties that are not really warranties, cars that turn out to be defective, repair charges not included in the original estimates and the length of time needed to obtain car repairs. She complained personally about cars with faulty designs, requiring tearing down a motor to make a minor repair.

Many manufacturers believe consumer interest is a passing fad, Miss Hanford said, and they have to be prodded to comply. "But it's not something that is going away," she declared.

The office of Special Assistant to the President for Consumer Affairs, of which Miss Hanford is a part, has been part of the administrations of recent Presidents, both Democrats and Republicans. It has become embedded in the executive office because consumer interest has grown with the growth of urbanization and the need for it. We are certain that consumer affairs will continue to play an important role in the executive branch for years to come. Manufacturers and suppliers will do well to heed its advice.

Youth Summer Job Survey

A Youth Summer Job Survey—initial step to secure employment during the summer months for the young people of Ulster County—has been undertaken by the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Ulster County Community Action Committee.

The survey forms, which seek to ascertain what jobs are available in the areas for youths in age brackets of 14 to 15; 16 to 17 and 18 and over, are returnable to the Rondout Neighborhood Service Center, 11 Broadway, Kingston. Representatives of the Community Action Committee also will be available for a discussion of the program with local business leaders.

The chamber reports that last year 120 youngsters were placed locally through the summer job program. It is the experience of those who have hired young people for the summer that they received satisfactory job performances. Later some of these employees were hired for job training and placement. Training is the key to permanent employment.

Homeowners can assist in providing jobs by hiring youngsters for chores such as taking care of lawns. Besides working off excess energy, they will be earning money for their recreational needs.

Over a thousand youngsters will be seeking employment for the summer months. The tremendous importance of employment for them should be apparent to everyone.

A personality profile of Attorney F. Lee Bailey found he was motivated primarily by a need to "destroy authority and a role in life to slay Goliaths." This could account for the flamboyant lawyer's quick rise to be one of the nation's most effective criminal advocates.

What Ever Happened to that Little Girl?

David Lawrence Says Move to Limit President's Power Basically Political

WASHINGTON — Lots of people throughout the country — including some members of the Senate and House — seem to think that only Congress can "declare war." They construe the words "declare war" to mean that the United States cannot defend itself without the consent of Congress. But how would they answer this question:

Supposing a foreign government fired in this nuclear age an intercontinental ballistic missile and destroyed many American lives? Would the President of the United States, who is also commander-in-chief of our armed forces, have to wait for Congress to be called into session — it might actually be in recess — before he would have authority to take the necessary steps to defend the American people?

Incidentally, Daniel Henkin, Assistant Secretary of Defense, told a meeting of the Aviation and Space Writers Association on Tuesday that the launching of a satellite confirms the technological progress of the Red Chinese. He warned that "prudence requires that we continue to credit them with near-term capability to fire their first intercontinental ballistic missile."

All presidents have adhered to the doctrine that it is the duty of the commander-in-chief to guard the territory of the United States and also to protect American lives and property abroad whenever endangered, without obtaining the consent of Congress beforehand. The Senate, however, is debating a measure which would prohibit federal funds from being used by the President in any way for U.S. ground or naval operations in Cambodia after a certain date, presumably June 30. Mrs. Nixon has already announced his intention of removing American forces by that time.

This action could do more than just affect the Cambodian situation. It could have an impact on America's military operation in the future. It could raise doubts whether American citizens abroad, who hitherto have been assured of protection when hostile countries have threatened them, can depend upon such a safeguard in the future. It also could mean that aggressor countries could attack smaller nations without fear of immediate counter-moves by the United States, because of the long delay that might ensue before Congress could give its consent to a military action.

The controversy is basically political, and those who are espousing the idea of limiting the President's powers think they are making votes at home. Actually, they are building up obstacles to the exercise of American military strength where it may be needed in other parts of the world to halt aggression and fulfill American commitments.

The Senate, for instance, has ratified both the Southeast Asia Treaty and the North Atlantic Treaty, under which the United States has made commitments to aid allied countries that are the victims of aggression. If the pending measure in regard to Cambodia is passed, however, there may be doubts whether the United States will honor its pledges. In other words, all treaties will be subject to considerable question as to their effectiveness if Congress now undertakes to limit the power of the commander-in-chief to initiate military steps when he deems them necessary to carry out American obligations.

There has always been a close interrelationship between Congress and the President when military operations start. As the war in Vietnam began to expand, President Johnson asked Congress for specific authority. Both houses, by an overwhelming majority, passed the "Gulf of Tonkin" resolution to permit the United States to help Southeast Asian countries to fight against the "systematic campaign of aggression that the Communist regime in North Vietnam has been waging against its neighbors."

Once the Cambodian operation is completed, which probably will be by the end of June, the anti-war sentiment may stimulate groups in Congress to push legislation to require the termination of our participation in the Vietnam War itself by compelling a withdrawal of all our troops by a certain date. This would be a risky step for the United States, and could encourage aggressors to start more trouble in Southeast Asia and elsewhere. The administration will certainly oppose any such legislative moves and will point out to the American people the dangers involved.

Cambodia Gamble Is Seen As Test for Nixon Nerve

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Talk to men at the White House and it becomes painfully clear President Nixon is going through a siege of self-doubts.

He went into Cambodia with confidence (after considerable nervous soul-searching) believing that he would be in — and out — before a hue and cry in the Senate and on the streets would mount to unmanageable levels.

He was so certain of himself, in fact, that he made little attempt to prepare public opinion and only a limited try at winning domestic allies in advance.

Experience seemed to indicate the two months Nixon had in mind for his Cambodian experiment was too short a time to organize serious resistance. The death of four students at Kent changed that.

Now men in the White House with whom this reporter has been in touch have begun to see what they interpret as a resurgence of Nixon's original nervousness over taking a strong stand.

A faltering by the President now could lead to rather unhappy results. When the Cambodian operation was being considered, the most military planners hoped to achieve with the destruction of about 25 per cent of the weapons, ammunition, equipment and rice the Communist forces had built up in five major base areas.

This was enough, they believed, to slow the enemy for the crucial six months they had in mind.

Officials this reporter talked to did not believe the raids would cause Hanoi to talk in Paris. Talk of destroying the Communist (COSVN) headquarters was aimed at giving the public something more tangible than food and ammunition as a target worth a gamble of these proportions. Critics, it was felt, being ignorant in the logic of guerrilla war, would underestimate and ridicule the risk of so many lives to destroy food, arms and equipment.

But destroying a quarter of the scattered supply caches in the five major Communist base areas in Cambodia requires a great many troops right up to the June 3 deadline.

Few people realize the large numbers of men and time required to find the Communist storage and support depots and bunker systems, so well they are camouflaged, so thick is the jungle and so large the area involved.

Disposal of what is found is equally difficult. Thousands of tons of rice cannot easily be carted away. It cannot be quickly destroyed. The same holds true for tons of arms, ammunition and equipment.

The problem is one of numbers of men and time. Because of the rains there is not much time.

With the growth of public clamor, Nixon is already withdrawing troops badly needed to aid the units searching and destroying these hidden stores.

The quicker-than-planned withdrawal of these forces will mean fewer arms, less equipment and rice will be found and destroyed.

The Communists thus will have the means to kill more Americans and South Vietnamese in the months ahead. There is also another matter at issue. The Cambodian raids and the four air attacks on the north were meant to assure Hanoi public pressure at home would not dissuade Nixon from doing what he believed he must do to bring the war to an end in a way that would preserve the right of the South Vietnamese to determine their own fate.

It was intended to convince the men in Hanoi they could not win this war as they did the war against France through a surrender on the home front.

If the public clamor is so great that Nixon seems to back down, how then is Hanoi to interpret this? Nixon's temporary boldness will have come to naught.

Nixon Learned From Eisenhower: Never Tell Plans in Advance

WASHINGTON — President Nixon told Republican congressional leaders the other morning about some advice he picked up from the late Dwight Eisenhower.

The leaders were discussing the Senate move to cut off military aid to Cambodia and to curtail the President's power to wage war.

Nixon recalled President Eisenhower's rule for dealing with an adversary: "As I like said, 'Some things I won't do, but I never say in advance what I will do.'"

Nixon pleaded that a President must be free to maneuver against an enemy. "You can never tell an enemy your intentions," he said.

Then he looked straight at the Senate leaders.

"If I were a Senator," he said, "I would never put a restriction on the hands of any Commander-in-Chief."

Tying Nixon's Hands

Secretary of State Bill Rogers and Secretary of Defense Mel Laird appeared to disagree, however, over how far they should compromise with the Senate. The restrictive language is contained in an amendment which Senators John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, have offered to the military sales bill.

"We need that military sales bill," said Laird, "and I would hope we could work out some (compromise) language."

But Rogers insisted that the Cooper-Church amendment would have to be revised so it wouldn't cause a "confrontation."

"The authority should not be in dispute," he said, meaning that the President's hands should not be tied.

Laird also told the GOP leaders that the Cambodian operation is "running well ahead of our expectations" and its "strategic success is assured."

He reported that all U.S. troops already have been withdrawn from one of the nine Cambodian sanctuaries and that "operations will continue to phase down."

Rogers confirmed Laird's optimistic report and urged the leaders not to waiver in their support of Nixon.

"If support of the President can be held firm until July

1," Rogers promised, "conditions will much improve." Footnote: The Secretary of State told the party leaders that Russia is supplying "about 80 per cent" of North Vietnam's war material.

Pinball Princes

The Internal Revenue Service is investigating American coin machine operators who have installed slot machines, juke boxes, pinball machines and other amusement devices throughout the Far East.

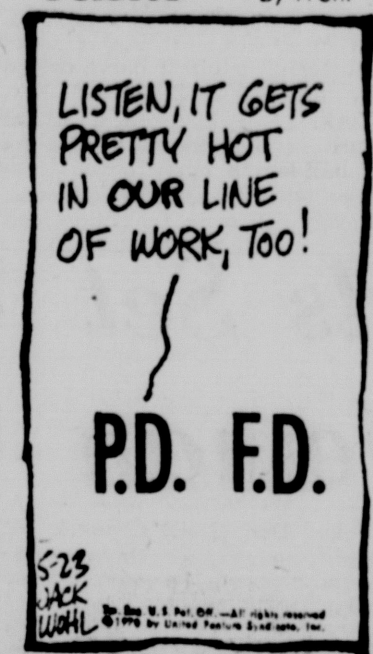

Agents have uncovered evidence of "skimming" profits and evading taxes that would make a Las Vegas mobster look like an amateur. They suspect that the American pinball princes have deposited millions in unreported profits in Swiss and other secret, numbered bank accounts.

The IRS, with offices in Saigon, Tokyo and Manila, is checking into the operations of American-owned coin machine companies doing business in Australia, Hong Kong, Japan, Okinawa, Philippines and South Korea. Among the companies under investigation, and IRS official confirmed, is the Tokyo-based Sega Enterprises, the largest distributor in the Far East.

The firm insists that it operates under the strictest accounting and business principles.

Henry J. Taylor Says Tax Revolt Is Spreading

National Tax Action, Inc., 529 14th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C., is doing just fine, folks. It is spearheading a tax revolt by us taxpayers peasants. Send these good people $5, get a Tax Action kit and join the battle.

There are at least 2,300 local and state tax protest groups around the country, blessings be, and this organization (nonprofit, of course) merely typifies several attacking at the national level.

What touched it off was the seamy event when our Congressmen arrogantly voted themselves — by voice vote, so that the votes couldn't be counted — a 41 per cent salary increase last year.

Moreover, the house payroll has gone up an undisclosed 84 per cent in the past eight years. What a swell example they set for the gigantic Federal bureaucratic tax-sucking octopus!

The Congressmen bemoaned the tide of taxpayers' letters protesting their slick 41 per cent pay increase. Yet, voila, "let them eat cake," the windbag boys promptly compounded this. They quietly authorized themselves — again by voice vote — to hire 555 additional clerks to handle the taxpayers' mail — one extra clerk for every member and some floaters, besides. The cost to us taxpayers peasants for this alone? $3.8 million this year.

Nor is that the limit of the slick tricks. For example, when we were hit with a $10 billion tax increase, right out of our hides, the tax bill called for a rollback of Federal employees "by drastic cuts." That's what the Washington handout said. But on the eve of the rollback law the windbag boys jumped the gun by packing the Federal payroll with an additional 95,350 employees — to another new high. This trick alone (undisclosed) has since cost us taxpayers peasants an estimated $750 million.

As able National Tax Action Executive Director Robert M. Bartlett says, "The problem is to win against an outrageous setup like that."

House Post Office & Civil Service Committee member Morris K. Udall, D., Ariz., concedes that his own fellow

Congressmen's 41 per cent self-voted raise was a factor in the recent postal strike and that millions of fed-up Federal employees contemplate striking as a consequence.

"The postmen felt bitter," Udall admits, "that here's a Congressman drawing a self-voted $42,000 a year from the taxpayers, plus all the many and mounting extras, and not acting on 'my pay while I still get $8,422 a year after 21 years' service.'"

And who among the rest of us does not feel that the Congressmen are so busy taking care of themselves that we taxpayers peasants need to be heard?

The windbag boys piously call on everybody else to sacrifice while they themselves sacrifice nothing whatever.

Taxes are now the biggest single item in our cost of living. Nothing else — food, clothing, shelter or anything else — is even a close second. Government overspending and the incredible waste are the causes. The taxes are the result. But we should have hope. Clearly our disgusted country is waking up to this.

A Gallup poll reports that 69 per cent (seven persons in every 10) say taxes are "too high." This is 17 points higher than ever before — an all-time high in tax protesters. Gallup finds that the threat of "a taxpayers' revolt is very real."

Citizens are banding together at local and state levels to stop the slick tricks, the waste and boosted levies. One Pennsylvania community, for example, started a short time ago with a few outraged people in its "Concerned Taxpayers' League and today has 700 members. The Pennsylvania Association of Tax Leagues now has 140,000 members. Mrs. Robert Charles, a 43-year-old mother of three, alone started a New Jersey group that now has many Trenton legislators climbing up the wall. Why not organize one yourself? Wisconsin tax expert Arch Ely tells me "the tax fat is really in the fire out here." And so it is going — and spreading.

Local groups need respectable, dedicated, nonprofit Washington lobbying organizations to attack at the Federal level. They are joining organizations like National Tax Action, Inc., which tie together the 2,300 — and rapidly growing — groups.

More power to all this, straight up the line. We taxpayers are the biggest single bloc in the country. And if we don't protect what we have at stake — here and now and with a roar — we have no one to blame but ourselves.

TEEN SCENE: Fresh Jailhouse Rock May Be Stale

By LEI

It may ruin their entire image, but the members of Fresh are not now, nor have they ever been, confined in Britain's Borstal Prison. However, Fresh may do for Borstal what Johnny Cash did for Folsom. More importantly, Borstal Prison may do for them what Folsom did for Johnny—it may lift them out of the welter of faces of new singing groups and identify them to the record-buying audience. What with friends, Frijid Pink, Faces, Flash, Flesh, Fuse, and Froth all competing for the spots on the hit list (to say nothing of Frost, Free, Flame, Flaim, and the Fairlanes—and apologies to all those groups that have slipped our mind) a group needs a "gimmick," not to be lost in a swirl of similar names, faces, and sounds.

Fresh Out of Borstal is not getting lost. RCA Records is making sure of that. RCA has been getting a very small slice of the record-boom pie in the half-decade since Columbia Records landed the Beatles. Jose Feliciano is probably their most contemporary seller, and the ribs on the attentive pup in their trademark are starting to show. What the company needed was a fresh sound. And Fresh is about as fresh as you can get.

Fresh is a three-member group, consisting of lead singer Kevin Francis, drummer Roger Chantler, and guitarist Robert Gorman, lavishly backed by an orchestra and chorus, the latter consisting of real convicts. Francis, Chantler, and Gorman themselves look like they were rejected from the tryouts for "In Cold Blood" because they looked too sinister. With slicked-down haircuts, hollow cheeks, grim expressions and dead eyes, they make Johnny Cash look about as tough as Debbie Reynolds, which is probably the whole idea.

Their promotion does all it can to highlight this promising unwholesomeness. The record jacket pictures them, convict-style, holding up prison number-plates. (Is there such a crime as "impersonating a criminal?") Ads boast that "Fresh Out of Borstal" says things nobody's ever said on an album. It says things polite people don't say at all. (That sounds great, but some of the material on the album includes songs already performed on albums by the Rolling Stones and other groups and singers. Of course, nobody ever called the Rolling Stones "polite," but the material seems a little stale for Fresh.)

RCA is trying to run Fresh through on the underground railway, well-aware, probably, that a record touted as "all the way from brute grey to the wildest shades of lavender" is not going to get much airplay on the major radio networks, particularly since it is an album, and most program directors turn off their heads at the sight of a disc more than six inches wide.

Fresh has a lot going for it—a distinctive image, a million-dollar advertising campaign, the best material available from the biggest songwriters on the hit list, and a new angle on the ever-popular prison-song field. Many of the young identify today with prisoners and their efforts to spark prison reform.

However, the catchiest gimmick and best promotion on Madison Avenue (or Tin Pan Alley) can fall flatter than a single that's been run over by a steam roller if the group itself doesn't have something new and valid to offer. Early reviews praise the way Fresh captures the feeling of isolation from oneself and others that life in a reformatory produces. They cite favorably the manner in which the record recalls the empty hard greyness of the mind and body surrounded by the empty hard greyness of concrete walls; how the record can produce the taut squeal of stretched nerves and the rigidity of tradition and routine.

But reviewers are less happy with the way Fresh echoes and even imitates others who have sung the jail blues. They find a lacking factor in basic originality between the grooves of "Fresh Out of Borstal." And that is bad news.

Because if Fresh Out of Borstal aren't really out of Borstal, they ought to be really, really, Fresh.

Earth Day Every Day for Area Teens

By JEAN F. DOLAN

KINGSTON

Exactly a month ago it was Earth Day in our land and everyone was talking about man's inhumanity to man and beast through pollution.

Area teens did not stop there. Kingston High School students this week issued Environment '70, a four-page publication with a piercing look at local problems and positive guidelines for eliminating at least some of them.

Labeled a portfolio of "Eco-Tactics," the well prepared newspaper lists ways and means for the individual to clean up the environment and prevent further contamination of nature through carelessness and don't care. Repeatedly the editors stress the importance of the individual in the cleanup and keep clean campaign. "Each citizen, no matter how insignificant he feels, has a part."

The editors, while listing ecological guidelines, remind their readers that the tactics "do not work unless we do."

Conservation organizations and sources of films and literature concerning ecology are listed for ready reference. Local organizations and meeting dates are included also.

A student group, Phrog Society of Kingston, offers through Environment '70 to sponsor cleanup in any place in Ulster County. Requests for the service may be directed to Donald Avallone at Kingston High School or by calling Tina Mendez or Lori Avery outside of school.

Meanwhile, a group from Ulster Academy is organizing a Memorial Weekend cleanup along the Minnewaska Trail. Craif Moss, chairman of arrangements, said dates will be May 29 and 30.

Those taking part will meet Friday 1 p.m. at the horseshoe bend on Route 44-55. Saturday crews will start 10 a.m. at the same site. Transportation will be provided from Ulster Academy at noon on Friday and 9 a.m. Saturday. Those who wish to stay overnight are advised to bring food and equipment for a campout.

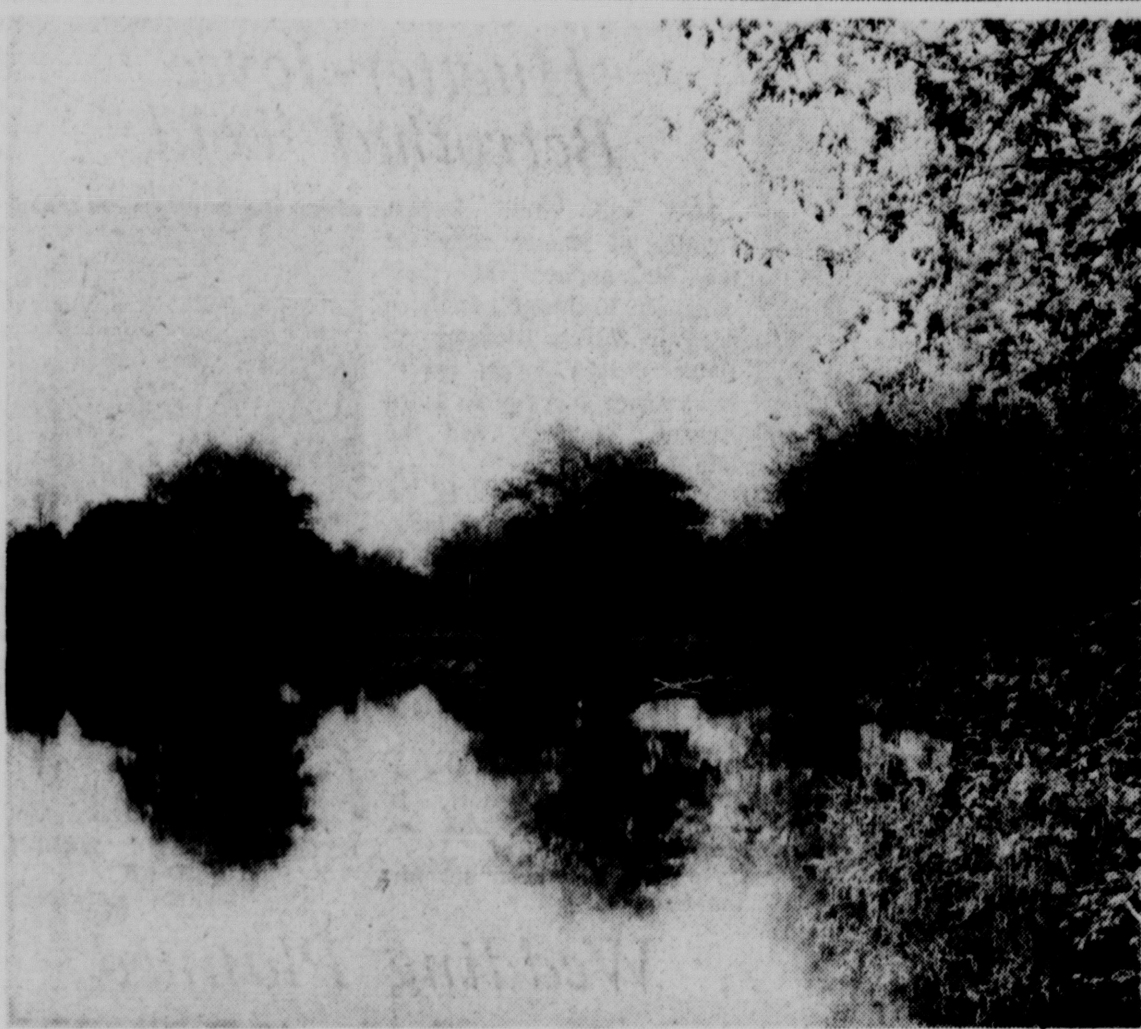

Moss said that donations of trucks to transport cleanings of the cleanup would be appreciated. All of those who wish to lend a hand in the work for beauty may do so.

Every Day is Earth Day for COPE, a newly formed group at Rondout Valley High School. With cleanup operations up permost, members of the committee On Preservation Of Environment are having a Canal Cleanup in High Falls that Dug Hill still has garbage today. The work is a continuation of last month's Earth Day beautification of the historic D & H Canal. The canal has been used as a dump for many years and students are attempting the herculean task of restoring the canal to cleanliness. The locks have been designated as a National Historic Site and as such should look like a canal rather than an overgrown dump.

Another impromptu dump problem is outlined by Sue Schneller in the KHS publication. Titled The Mess on Dug Hill Road, the article points an accusing finger at the careless beer drinkers and deliberate dumpers along the scenic route in Hurley. Students chose that is a cleanup site recently and managed to make a dent in some of the mess. Environment '70 editors note triumphs in the pollution battle. Pleadings are due the very capable staff of Environment '70. The first issue indicates excellent preparation, sincerity of purpose and clarity of presentation. Special thanks was expressed to Donald Avallone, Milly DeWitt, Harry Edinger, Dave Fletcher, Dan Guzewich, Bill Hutton, Al Marquardt, Viola Opdahl, Sue Schneller and Tina Mendez for "information, time, help and encouragement." Certainly this is an indication that Earth Day didn't stop at midnight April 22. With concerted efforts, Environment '70 may be the best in many a year. The next edition of KHS ecology portfolio hopefully will carry banner headlines of triumphs in the pollution battle.

Youth in the News Hold Scholarships and Titles

Scholarship honors and elections figure in this week's Youth in the News.

Outstanding linguistic achievement won honors for Paula Carollo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albino Carollo at the College of St. Rose, Albany, recently. The Kingston girl received a certificate for her performance in the dramatic production of Don Juan Tenorio during Foreign Language Week this year. Presentation was made at the annual honors convocation at the college. Paula, a sophomore, is majoring in Spanish.

The New York State Teachers Association for the third consecutive year has awarded one of its five $1000 state-wide scholarships to a student from State University College, New Paltz.

The 1970 winner of the association's "Arvie Eldred Scholarship" is Judith A. Tighe of 47 Millrock Road, New Paltz, daughter of Mrs. Helen Tighe, 197 Drake Avenue, New Rochelle. Miss Tighe will graduate from the New Paltz college in January.

Thirty-six colleges in New York submitted nominations for the five scholarships, awarded to students who are preparing for careers in teaching. The awards are based on scholarship, personality, and teaching aptitude.

The award is named in honor of the executive secretary of the 100,000 member professional teachers organization. Eldred served 21 years in that post with the association. Last year's winner from New Paltz was Mary L. Weathers of Syracuse, and in 1968, the scholarship was awarded to Gail H. Slotwinski, 60 East Chester Street, Kingston.

A Kingston man, George Jones, is one of the recipients of John Christopher Hartwick Scholarships. This is the highest scholastic award a student may receive while at Hartwick College, Oneonta. Selection is based on outstanding academic achievement and character.

George is a junior majoring in mathematics. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jones of 115 Henry Street. The scholarships were presented during honors convocation ceremonies earlier this month.

Awards were the order of the day at Orange County Community College recently and two Ulster County students were among those honored. Catherine McClintock of Wallkill received citations for physical education and recreation majors club; Penny Kroh of Marlboro was cited for her work with the Colt publication.

Recent college elections put two Kingstonians in office. John Rose, son of Mrs. Hazel M. Rose of Colonial Gardens, was elected sophomore class president, and was also elected to the Tech Forum during recent elections at Indiana Institute of Technology, Fort Wayne, Ind.

John is majoring in electrical engineering. He was a 1967 graduate of Patrick's High School, Catskill.

The Tech Forum is an organization of students, faculty and staff, set up to help provide effective communication among the three groups.

Indiana Tech is a private, four-year college offering the Bachelor of Science degree in five engineering and three science majors and the Associate of Arts Degree in general education. The college's current enrollment is 900.

John J. Cooke, a junior in Fordham College, has recently been elected vice-president of the Undergraduate Resident Council at Fordham's Rose Hill campus.

Cook, who plays intercollegiate rugby, also has been recently chosen to be a member of the Fordham Club of 1971. He is one of 22 Fordham College juniors selected to this honor-fraternal-service society. Selection is based upon excellence in academics, athletics, and service to the Fordham community.

Cook, who is a European History major, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Cook who reside at 200 Downs Street, Kingston.

Six Kingston area students have been accepted for full enrollment at the State University College of Arts and Science at Brockport. They are: Henry W. Harder, Jack Peter Mautner, Marilyn Argulewicz, Mary R. Boice, Dale A. Whitman and Elizabeth M. Leahy.

Other dean's listings from around this state include the names of area students. A Kingston girl, Gioira A. Herbert Epstein Sr., Phoenicia.

Marchetti, daughter of Anteo Marchetti of Hilltop Drive is an honor student at State College of Agriculture, Cornell University, where she is a freshman. Hartwick College listings include the following local honor students. Carolyn L. Genthner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Genthner of 82 Elm Street, Saugerties; Judith Howland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Howland of Lake Hill; George P. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Heebert P. Jones of 115 Henry Street, this city.

Also, Nadine W. Schreiber, daughter of Mrs. Charlotte H. Nichols of Stillwater Road, Stone Ridge; Lauren E. Winne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Winne of 280 Washington Avenue, Kingston; Daniel E. Zoller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Zoller of 143 Henry Street, Kingston and Herbert Epstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Epstein Sr., Phoenicia.

Spectators Become Participants in Folk

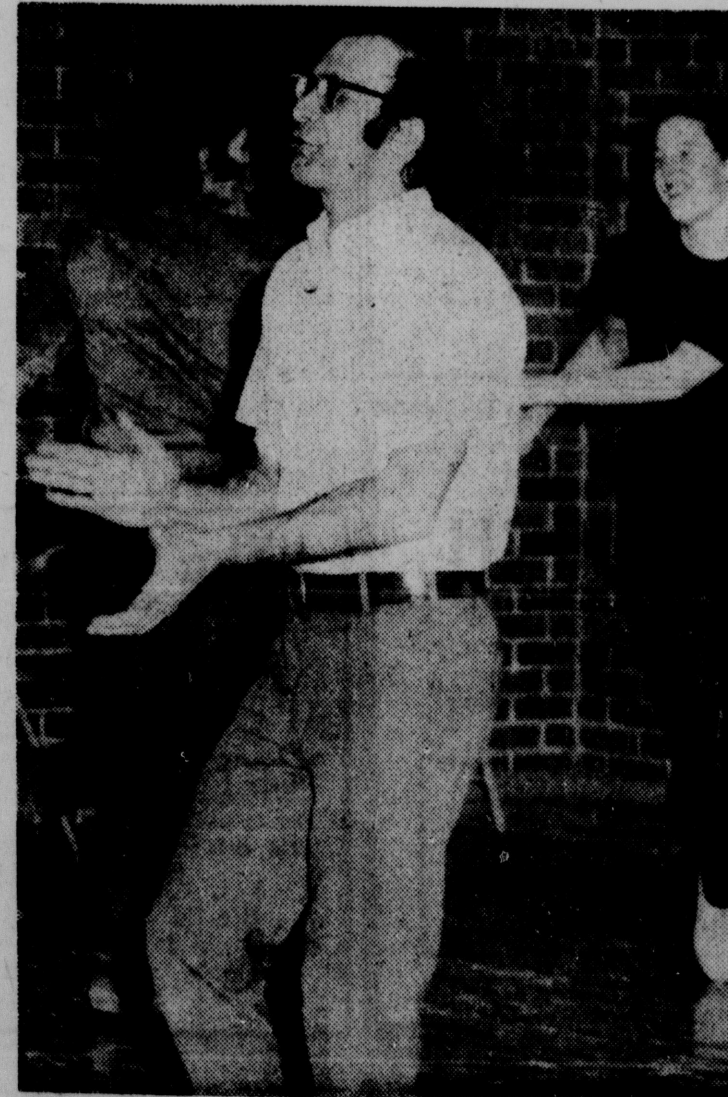

Ron Sanders, folk dance instructor, puts Ulster Academy students through their paces at a recent teaching session.

In addition to instruction at the Academy, Sanders conducts folk dancing classes for teenagers at Christ Lutheran Church, Woodstock Mondays 4 to 5:30 p.m. "Open sessions" for anyone interested are held at the church Fridays 8:30 to 11 p.m.

Folk dancing has become increasingly popular as part of the return to folk evidenced in the music world as well. Sanders said "it is not surprising to me how easily teenagers become involved in the music and dance of Israel, Greece and the Balkans. There is an excitement that is generated in this type of activity that contemporary music cannot equal. With folk dancing one becomes a participant, not a spectator."

In addition to the work with teen groups, Sanders also has a performing group called the Novo Dancers. They have presented folk dance programs at Temple Emanuel, Ulster County Community College, Rhinebeck Country School, Poughkeepsie Jewish Community Center and many assembly programs in local schools.

Programs are followed by teaching sessions for the audience. (Freeman photos by Haines)

Cleanliness

A Wisconsin Health Department official points out that one of the most important factors in food preparation — at home as well as in restaurants — is cleanliness. Soap and water kill disease-causing bacteria. So a word to the wise: keep kitchen appliances, utensils and cookware spotlessly clean and wash hands before handling food.

Tiny Tips

ELECTRIC SLICING KNIVES
Electric slicing knives require no more care than any good blade. Simply wash blades carefully in warm sudsy water and rinse and dry thoroughly. Wipe motor handle with damp cloth and dry.

HAIR ACCESSORIES

Curlers and hair accessories, such as the fashionable wide clips, should be washed occasionally in a basin of warm suds to remove the film formed by natural hair oils and hair dressings.

Dear Abby

Remarriage Up to Dad

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: After mother died, our father lost no time in finding another lady to keep him company. She is 36. Dad is 57. Dad also said he doubted if he'd ever marry again, but 8 months after mother's death he was a married man. He said we would be the first to know if he decided differently. We were the last to know.

Don't say it's none of our business. We are his children and we love him, and it's very much our business. We just can't see dad marrying a woman who is the same age as his oldest daughter. Are we wrong to be...

DISGUSTED WITH DAD: I think you are. True, since your father said you'd be the first to know, he should have kept that promise. But if you really "love" him, concern yourself only with his happiness. (P.S. If the age difference presents a problem between them, it will be their problem.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Pat) has been acting kind of funny lately—moody and depressed and like that. I finally got him to tell me what was bothering him. Well, it seems he was feeling "guilty" about an affair he had last summer with my best friend (I'll call her Marge). I was so hurt and heart sick I lost 10 pounds in 10 days.

Pat promised he'd never see Marge again, so I forgave him. But here's my problem: I used to be pal around with Marge and Mack (he's Marge's husband) and now I don't care to have anything to do with them. Marge told me she knew that Pat had confessed everything to me, and she didn't act one bit ashamed. She's all for continuing the friendship just like nothing happened.

Now Pat says if we don't keep seeing Marge and Mack, Mac will get suspicious and wonder why. Frankly, I don't care what he thinks. Pat says I'm being unfair because he and Mac are real good buddies now and I'm breaking up their friendship. Abby, I just don't want to see this couple any more. Am I wrong?

DEAR WIFE: No. Tell Pat if he wants to continue to be a buddy to Mac, he can do it on his own time, but to include you out. And to forget the foursome for the time being, too.

DEAR ABBY: To back up "OKLAHOMA WHITE": I'll ask, how many whites condemned to death could be trusted to go out and buy his burial clothes, be fitted for a coffin, say good-bye to his friends and be back at the appointed place at the scheduled time of his execution? There weren't many executions, but that is how they were carried out in the Creek nation. Indians ARE honorable!

DILUTED CHEROKEE:
AURORA, ILLINOIS

CONFIDENTIAL TO WINDY CITY: Don't expect to find an honest partner for a crooked deal.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

The Student wasn't sure what he should respond to the Professor's spade opening. However, the Student's general policy is to raise the Professor so he pumped to three spades in spite of his 4-3-3-3 distribution. Needless to say the Professor carried on to game.

The Professor looked over dummy for about half a second. In that brief interval he noted that there was no legitimate play for four spades while there would have been an excellent play for three no-trump. He also noted there just might be a way to make 10 tricks if the cards and the opponents would cooperate with him.

As mentioned earlier all this thought took less than half a second. The Professor thinks fast.

Then he played the deuce of diamonds from dummy. East played the four and the Professor the three.

West hauled in the trick and continued with the jack of diamonds. He had noted that the four-spot was the highest diamond played but what would you do? Could you visualize what was going to happen to you?

Now the Professor was ready to give the cards their chance to help him. He took his ace of diamonds, played a trump to dummy's ace, discarded a heart on the king of diamonds, played a trump back to his king, cashed the ace and king of hearts and ruffed a third round of the suit.

When it turned out that this had accounted for all the hearts except for dummy's nine, the Professor entered dummy with the jack of trumps, discarded a club on that last heart and conceded two club tricks to his unfortunate opponents. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Forecast for Sunday, May 24

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is one of your best days to think in terms of your over-all aims and objectives and what you can do to best bring them about. Don't put too much importance on little things or others will consider you a fuss-budget and you get little done.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try some new forms of recreation that are more to your liking, where you can meet new and interesting people. Later, take care of your correspondence. Plan that trip today, also.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make sure you take care of those promises you made. This is not a good day to spend money for recreation that could amount to a good deal. Be smart.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are tempted to take your anger out on an innocent family member, but this would be very wrong. Meet with partners and plan a more effective future. See those who can assist you in your plans.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You want to get much done today, so don't allow others to distract you. Persevere and you get much done. Have a little family get-together to-night.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have been missing out on some fine social or recreational activities, but can make them up easily today. Be with those you admire. See what a loved one wants of you and try to bring happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be more willing to do what kin desire instead of going off on tangents of your own that are not good. Make your home a more charming place. Don't give in to feelings of vengeance for a slight—rise above such.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take care of those personal chores quickly and then out to the interesting places and people who can assist you in your career. Some new outlet needs more study if you are to be successful in it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take the time to plan how to become more affluent instead of spending time with friends on some rather insignificant matter. Have a more positive attitude toward life. Business experts take a chance on you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do what pleases you most and is important to you instead of letting others tell you what to do today. Make headway in your career via the social ladder. Make the effort to get into fine social whirl.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A good day for preparation for the new interests and outlets that will soon keep you very busy. Don't go out for some unnecessary jaunt, but keep busy making plans. Be happy with mate in the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Listening carefully to the suggestions of sensible friends can be most helpful today. Forget business—you need relaxation and exercise.

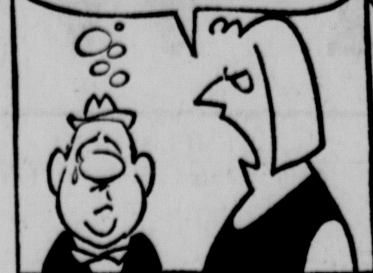

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be sure you do whatever will stamp you as an A-1 citizen. Forget that party where you could get into some kind of trouble. Keep busy and you avoid another bad situation elsewhere. Be kind with everyone.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those clever young people who will never waste a moment where his or her career is concerned. Teach this child to be more understanding of others and to think of their feelings for best results, otherwise your child will take advantage of others and meet with failure and dislike. A business college background would be fine here, and then law school. Sports are fine.

Second Thoughts on the UDC Housing Proposal

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

ITEM: Doubts About UDC Housing.
The doubts about the Urban Development Corporation's proposal to build up to 150 units of middle income housing in Broadway East were expressed by Mayor Francis R. Koenig and Assemblyman H. Clark Bell on Tuesday.

A curious combination, Democrat-Liberal Koenig and Republican-Conservative Bell. A very curious statement, considering what led up to it.

As far as we know, Mayor Koenig made the initial overtures to UDC about Broadway East. The mayor held numerous closed door meetings during the winter with UDC officials and finally unveiled his plans at a press conference in March.

Everyone was there . . . the bankers, the planners from Pattern for Progress, the Chamber of Commerce. Everybody except Bell. The story we now get is that Bell was "fighting" in Albany for $362,000 in planning funds for the project.

Presumably, going by the mayor's version, Bell was in on the deal all along. He was working at his end in Albany and Koenig et al were working in Kingston.

Meanwhile, Koenig goes on vacation in Florida. The day before he gets back (Friday) Bob Gallo, as acting mayor, sends a recommendation to sign the UDC memorandum of understanding to the Council for its Tuesday meeting. Note that Koenig did not recommend it. Gallo did. So no one can now say to Koenig, "Gee, Frank, you sent it up to the Council. How come you're having second thoughts?"

KOENIG (and Bell) seem most concerned about the architect. It seems he won't be local. Koenig has the idea that the only responsible architects are local architects . . . "one who is familiar with and sensitive to our community."

Unfortunately, our local architects just don't make the grade in regards to this project. UDC contacted all the local guys and got answers from two of them, Milliken and Hutton.

Milliken, they say, hasn't done any housing work since he designed some dwellings for Stewart Air Force Base several years ago. Hutton has the experience but doesn't have the staff. He's a one-man operation.

Koenig reportedly suggested that local architects combine their efforts. UDC mixed that one. It would be like seven artists painting one picture.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

Koenig is also concerned with the time schedule. It's supposed to take about 2 1/2 years from the time the memorandum of understanding is signed (if it is signed) on May 28.

It might be worth mentioning, that the city hall funds were approved in June of last year and that construction, if it begins next month, will end about 18 months later. That works out to 2 1/2 years.

Koenig's major concern is that once UDC gets its foot in the door it will spread like a cancer, building apartment complexes all over the city. Kingston might not die from that particular disease.

UDC has broad powers that it obviously hasn't chosen to use yet. Actually, UDC doesn't have to meet with the mayor or city officials at all. It could, if it chose, move in, buy up property and start building, regardless of the zoning.

THAT HAS been pointed out, we are told, on more than one occasion by John Machione, leader of the silent minority in the Common Council. John, of course, voted for the memorandum of understanding in the Council last month. He's an accommodating fellow.

We are told that one of the reasons Clark Bell had to "fight" so hard for that $362,000 in UDC funds in the Assembly was that UDC still isn't all that popular with the Albany solons. It's Rockefeller's baby, passed after severe arm bending two years ago. The legislature didn't like it then mainly because of its broad powers. Its kept an eye on the program, ready to repeal it if UDC does go power crazy.

UDC hasn't, to date. It's of course, aware of the mood in Albany. One wrong move and that's all she wrote.

We can't see where the zoning problem is really relevant in Broadway East. Who's going to complain? The field mice?

Indications are that the mayor has other developers in mind, besides UDC. These guys reportedly put up some kind of pre-fab housing within a year. Quality and durability of course are the main considerations. No one, least of all the mayor, wants instant slums. Better they make a one hole golf course out of Broadway East with the Rondout Creek as a water hazard.

We think the mayor may be hedging his bet. If this Broadway East project comes out all right he can have a ball at the ribbon cutting. If it doesn't . . . well, he warned us.

We can't quite see Bell's role in all this. Surely, Koenig doesn't need Bell to hold his hand on city affairs.

SOME SAY it was political on Bell's part, the old dodge.

Assemblyman proves friend to Kingston, vote for assemblyman, he needs the vote.

Bell doesn't. Not really. If he doesn't win 2-1 this time out, we'll be surprised.

All that confuses the main point, anyway. The city needs that housing in Broadway East. UDC looks like the best vehicle. (Even the mayor said words to that effect once upon a time).

Let's hope the next joint news release from the mayor and the assemblyman is of a more positive nature.

THE BIG GUY — We're referring to Eddie Parker, who confirmed reports this week that he's leaving his post of executive director with the Ulster County Community Action Committee.

We interviewed Eddie and his boss, Douw Myers, chairman of the UCAC board of directors. It wasn't the money. Eddie was getting $12,400. The hours weren't all that bad. Sure, sometimes he worked 55 hours a week but if you like what you're doing, the time flies.

It was frustration, pure and simple. People just didn't understand. Worst of all, sometimes the people UCAC was trying to help didn't understand. As Myers put it, "There were so many blind alleys."

We don't want to end on a sour note, so we'll pass along this Eddie Parker story we got from Jack Houghtaling, the deputy city treasurer.

Houghtaling and Parker were playing basketball last year in the over-30-league, the story goes. Parker, who must go about 6-3, 250, was still dunking the ball, according to Houghtaling.

A somewhat awe-struck Houghtaling exclaimed to Parker: "Man, you must have been some jumper when you were in shape! How high could you go?"

"Just as high as I had to," Parker answered.

The big guy will be missed.

NAPANOCH PICKETING — Guards of the Catskill Reformatory, Napanoch, are shown picketing outside the reformatory protesting wages and retirement benefits. Correction officers demand equality with New York City officers.

Statewide picketing began Wednesday, mainly at state institutions in Dutchess and Ulster Counties. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Paltz College Faculty Stands Behind Neumaier

NEW PALTZ — The motion was introduced by Dr. Larry Holmes, chairman of the college's philosophy department, before more than 225 faculty members assembled for the last meeting of the college year.

Dr. Holmes said that "rumors out of all proportion to reality have contributed to a climate of distrust in some quarters of the community and a lack of understanding of President Neumaier's true role during these past weeks."

He cited the president's "firm refusal to give in to demands and provocations to close the college."

The faculty at State University College, New Paltz, rallied behind President John J. Neumaier today and in a voice vote of confidence at a faculty meeting made it unmistakably clear that they felt the college under President Neumaier had come out of the recent crisis remarkably free of turbulence compared to other institutions.

By a very large majority, the faculty voted to "affirm our strong support of the leadership of President Neumaier during the recent crisis which beset our campus."

Dr. Holmes said, "The urgent message I suggest that this faculty convey to the college and the larger community is that under President Neumaier's leadership, peace was maintained, violence was avoided, and irresponsible behavior was at a minimum; the college has remained open, and faculty-student-administration relationships have been strengthened rather than eroded."

Dr. Holmes remarked that lives had been lost and many colleges have suspended their school year because of campus upheavals, but he said that as a result of the confidence President Neumaier had built since his arrival, New Paltz had escaped these problems.

He continued, "Administering a college these days is a process more analogous to shooting the rapids in a frail canoe than to the placid contemplation of the fixed stars. The chief administrative officer has to watch out for all the rocks, not just one or two of them."

The faculty's vote of confidence was the second in two weeks accorded to the president. A similar motion was passed at a special faculty meeting on the fourth day of the student protests which followed the tragic deaths of four young people at Kent State in Ohio.

rektor Robert P. Mayo will go before the House Ways and Means Committee Monday to submit the administration's proposal.

A White House spokesman said he did not know if President Nixon would submit a message to Congress, as he did last year.

Cambodia Proposal: Outcome in Doubt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate plans to vote early next week on whether to modify a proposal to curb U.S. military activities in Cambodia, but the outcome appears unlikely to settle the issue.

This became apparent when Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., one of the Republicans opposed to such a curb, said Friday he will vote for an amendment that revises the language in the proposal by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho.

Cooper and Church offered the revised language Thursday in a bid to reach an accommodation, but Republican leaders said the White House feels it fails to go far enough toward upholding President Nixon's authority to protect U.S. troops in Cambodia and Vietnam.

Griffin said he would support the revision because it improves the original Cooper-Church amendment, which he opposes. Cooper-Church forces claim 53 Senate votes, so the revision is likely to be approved.

But the tally won't reflect the true Senate division on the issue. Republican backing for the revision will camouflage what most tallies indicate is the administration's minority position.

Approval of the revision still leaves open the possibility that administration supporters will move via a series of proposals to give the President the authority he seeks. And there is no indication of an early vote on the Cooper-Church amendment itself.

The basic issue is this: the White House is willing to go along with the main prohibition on funds for U.S. forces in Cambodia, provided the President is given explicit authority to take actions to protect American forces in both Vietnam and Cambodia.

The Cooper-Church forces oppose any such exception, because Nixon ordered the original attack into Cambodia with the announced aim of protecting U.S. forces in Vietnam, and they want to avoid a repetition.

The revised language to be on funds for "retaining" U.S. voted on Tuesday would leave forces in Cambodia and restrict intact the Cooper-Churching U.S. aid and use of airpower amendment's substantive ban.

Sculpture Takes to the Great Outdoors

KEYED TO THE SPACE-AGE

AUTOMATED MOTHERHOOD

A CHUNKY ETHEREALISM

A unique sculpture exhibition, keyed to the spirit of its subject matter, turned the campus lawns at Ulster County Community College into an outdoor world of art last week.

As sculpture craftsmen, the students of three-dimensional art at Stone Ridge proved adept. The environmental works that dotted the lawns in a seemingly endless array spotlighted the individual thoughts and talents of their creators. And each jostled for attention with a nearby and equally meritorious neighbor.

This was no small and intimate gallery, but a gallery so large in scope, it became a semi-theater. Such wealth might well have created a visual conflict for an audience exploring its myriad delights. To its credit, the show was so arranged that it became an adventure in relaxed viewing.

Each Piece Individual

An outstanding show, it never once repeated itself; moved from one remarkable subject to another. Each individual piece—created with the great outdoors in mind—captured passages of the world today. There was grace and beauty for the eye to isolate, but there were special trademarks, too, of what galvanizes today's young.

Frozen in the lean and the sleek, in the conventional and classic, in the stolid and blocklike pieces, was more than mere metal, cement or wood. Each sculptor had found his own style and, in a very personal way, had created the epitome of an idea, whether that idea came out of agitation and violence, calm and tenderness, poetry or vigor.

The result was a space-age sculpture show that encapsulated its environment as it intended. (By TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

Biggest Musical Explosion of the Season

17—THE DAILY FREEMAN, MAY 23, 1970

VERSATILE ERIC PAYNE, like most of People's cast, is multi-talented. In tours around the U. S. and abroad, he conducts, sings, and also solos on the trumpet.

BOB MOTZ from Columbia City, Indiana, is a soloist in the 1970 Up With People Show. A whole array of new talent and new music has been added to the program since the group arrived here last year.

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

The auditorium is capacity. It always is—no matter where they go. Every one of several thousand seats holds a pair of waiting eyes, a pair of anxious ears, keeping watch on the front, carefully listening for those backstage sounds that will indicate the show is ready to take off and fly.

And when it does—when "they" come on stage with their instruments, with their voices singing songs—it's a musical explosion... a demonstration of how entertainment can put across ideas of man's creative potential.

It's a bracing experience to hear them, mostly because they speak in an original dialect totally their own... because their music is their type of music—joyous and youthful.

Explosively Exciting

As musical linguists, as entertainers with a purpose to motivate each and every member of their audience, Up With People is an explosively exciting group. They take to the stage with energy and drive. Yet no matter how sleek and polished their current direction may be, their roots come through in dynamic renditions ranging from quietly simple country and western to the hardest of hard rock.

And Up With People will take to the stage here in Kingston at the Kate Walton Field House on Friday and Saturday, May 29 and 30 at 8:30 p. m. That they are returning to repeat the outstanding success they scored here last year doesn't detract from the fact that they're the hottest musical aggregation to come to town this year. Enough talented new people have been added to the cast, and the music itself has changed to so vast an extent, the 1970 version is all new.

Up With People's power of expression is communication and, with each season, these talented performers change and improve by making the music "more their own." Ninety cast members will appear here, representing some 15 countries and 40 states. The international troop hails from 22 countries, so the Kingston production will boast a major slice of the talent.

Since their sell-out shows at Kingston High School last year, the cast has toured the entire Midwest, Mexico, Canada, the West Coast, and much of the South and East. Just before arriving in Kingston, they will appear in South Carolina, Alabama, and Washington, D. C. for special performances at the Smithsonian.

SOME OF THE SOLOISTS with Up With People's all-new 1970 show commune with nature during an off-stage break. But when they appear here in Kingston next weekend, they'll be communicating with audiences in their own unique musical way.

FEATURED TRIO in the Up With People show includes the vibrant voices of Marcia Martinson, Pat Ector and Sandra Cumberbatch. People's cast is representative of 22 countries and 40 states.

UP WITH PEOPLE'S type of music is totally their own, marked with an authentic stamp of originality. It literally lifts you out of your seat. In this number, a song and dance team takes over the stage in just one of the many varieties of entertainment featured.

"STREAMBED," ORIGINAL ETCHING BY BARBARA NEUSTADT

Original Print for Collectors

Area collectors have long recognized the fact that the annual limited edition prints offered by the Woodstock Artists Association provide an opportunity to purchase superlative art works for the home at reasonable prices. And, in the 1970 print, they are being offered one of the finest collector's items to date.

This year, the Artists Association commissioned Barbara Neustadt to design and execute the special print for 1970 sustaining and patron members. Just completed, the print is an original etching in four colors, titled "Streambed," and signed by the artist.

As an artist, Barbara Neustadt has achieved her well-earned recognition in "Who's Who in American Art" and "Who's Who of American Women," and through many one-man shows in Portland, New York City, Philadelphia Museum of Art, Des Moines Art Center, Tryon Museum and Smith College.

A native of Iowa, artist

Neustadt (who, in private life, is Mrs. Gunther Meyer) is a long time Woodstock resident. A former scholarship student at the Art Students League, she studied painting with the celebrated Ben Shahan and the highly respected Arnold Blanch. She turned to printmaking after working with the late Marget Lowengrund in Woodstock, and after earning a B.A. degree from Smith College and studying at the University of Chicago and Ohio University's School of Fine Arts.

Now director and instructor of the Studio Graphics Workshop in Woodstock, she has been the recipient of numerous awards; is represented in three editions of "Etchings for Collectors of American Art," as well as in one edition for the International Graphic Arts Society.

The book, "The First Christmas," by T. Y. Crowell, was designed and illustrated by her, as was the article, "Aquatint," in "Prints and How To Make Them" by Arthur Zaidenberg.

The limited edition print she has created for the Woodstock Artists Association, "Streambed," is a unique collector's item; is available this year only to those who elect to become Sustaining ($25) or Patron ($50 or more) members of the Association.

"Streambed" may be obtained at the WAA gallery on Woodstock's Village Green during the 1970 season. It is also available to those who submit a check and membership application by mail to the Woodstock Artists Association, 28 Tinker Street, Woodstock, N.Y. 12498.

Opening Party May 30

Woodstock Artists Set First Show of Season

The 1970 summer season is about to begin at the Woodstock Artists Association. The show will display work done by artists under 30 years of age, and will be juried by artists in that age group.

The first show for this year will be an All Media-All membership exhibit, slated to run from May 30 through June 9. Only works by members of WAA will be accepted for display in this particular show (marking the only time this season that will be a requirement). Members interested in showing are asked to bring one piece of their work will be received there on Wednesday, May 27 from 4 to 6 p.m.

The gala opening party, to which the public is invited, will be held May 30 from 4 to 6 p.m. at the gallery, located on Woodstock's Village Green. Following the opening party, the gallery will be open daily except Thursdays from 1 to 5 p.m.

Under 30 Show

Following the All Membership Show, WAA will hang its second exhibition of the season, the Under 30 Show of works in all media. The show will display work done by artists under 30 years of age, and will be juried by artists in that age group.

For this second show, WAA is interested in work by artists under 30 from anywhere in the vicinity. In the realization that more and more young people are being attracted to the area, WAA will sponsor this show as a way of welcoming them.

Anyone interested in exhibition in the Under 30 Show, who meets the qualifications of age and residency, should bring or send his name and address now to the Woodstock Artists Association, so that the organization may make contact in advance of the exhibit.

and a command type performance before the Secretary of Commerce.

Aimed at Communication

Along the way, they have added many new numbers; made changes with which all age groups can identify. Some of the changes have been made to make for more identification with the young than in the songs previously featured; others have been made to express their basic ideas in a different way; to utilize an idea or a better way of presentation for more forceful communication.

"We don't want older adults to think of us as just a bunch of nice, clean-cut kids," say members of the group. "If we're that, we're also representative of youth as a whole today. Our ideas are their ideas, and we use our music to put them across as positively as possible. It's a 'demonstration,' but a musical one to show our belief that mankind must be motivated into doing new things in a positive way."

As youthfully idealistic as most youngsters their age, the People cast is united in a desire to put across the message that there's a "creative spark and potential" in every man; that each individual can use this reservoir for the good of humanity.

While Up With People doesn't talk up a revolution, the cast is fluent and articulate in its powers of expression. "If we can motivate an audience to understand our ideas," they say, "we feel people can fly at leaps and bounds. Some of our music is aimed at being pleasing to the conservative parent or businessman, and some of it is aimed totally at young people to emphasize our belief that they are the leaders of tomorrow."

A Way of Life

For Up With People, music is hobby, work, love, recreation, an absolute way of life. Every show is a flawless vehicle, filled with bright numbers and excellent solos. They give a beautifully integrated performance, and the age of their audience plays no part in the enjoyment provided. Music of very kind is blended together, so that what emerges is not too much of anything and, often, not enough of some to satisfy an audience that always wants more.

Vivid and powerful, with a highly exciting drive and force, the show explodes on stage like musical dynamite. Two hours in length, it fills the stage with such vast numbers of talented people, singing, playing and dancing to 32 songs, that it literally lifts audiences out of their seats, and doesn't put them back down again until the curtain rings down.

The demand for tickets to Up With People's two performances here should set a record at the box office. Even though they're moving from the high school auditorium to the fieldhouse to accommodate larger audiences, seats will be at a premium for the biggest, most joyous and, in their own youthfully descriptive word—HOTTEST—show to hit town this season. TEMPO recommends you get your tickets now at the Chamber of Commerce office in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Gilbert Exhibit A 'Global' Show

Oil portraits in the classical tradition, watercolor scenes, she is a member of American and drawings by Woodstock Association of University artist Dorthy Gilbert are Women; has led study groups featured in the current exhibit on the history of art, and at Phoenixia Library. She also holds membership in the Woodstock Artists Association and the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen. Long an organic gardener, she is delighted that this field has become so highly respectable today.

The work on view reflects the artist's travels to various parts of the world. Among the subjects: towering castles in Wales and Scotland, an architecturally odd cathedral in Leningrad, and a street scene in pre-Castro Cuba. In the children's room of the library hangs her delightful study of monkeys.

A Woodstock resident since 1925, Dorothy Gilbert still lives in the same house she and her husband purchased then. Originally from Portland, Ore., she is a graduate of Wells College; studied art with a scholarship in Portland and New York's Art Students League.

Kingston's Old Dutch Church recently featured a one-man show of her work, and many portraits painted by commission and other work now hangs in San Francisco, Portland, Miami, Kalamazoo, Newark, and elsewhere.

The Gilbert show may be seen through May during those hours when the Phoenixia Library is open daily except Sunday.

'Hunting' at the Flea Market

Where else but a flea market can one do some serious searching for "old things" . . . or browse for fun to admire that which has gone out of fashion?

Anything is likely to turn up at a flea market from a beautiful, old porcelain piece to an odd-looking cigar box.

For those reasons, many who love pottery and silver, who collect curious jewelry, brooches and rings, or who are attracted to objects rarely found these days, can be expected to go treasure hunting at the outdoors booths which will proliferate at the Wallkill Woman's Club Third Annual Antique Flea Market.

A Lawn Event

The event will be held on the Wallkill Library lawn on June 6 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Should rain interfere, it will be moved inside to the Wallkill Middle School gymnasium.

Pianistically Great, Technically Skilled

In a triumphal return from Europe, where she has been living since 1967, pianist Ann Lynn Miller will be sponsored in a solo recital by the directors at large of Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society.

Miss Miller, hailed by Belgium music critics as a "pianistically great . . . technically skilled" artist, will appear in solo recital on Wednesday, May 27, at 8 p.m. in Poughkeepsie High School.

The recital has been planned as a special benefit in support of the Philharmonic Orchestra's sustaining fund campaign. And Miss Miller, who has been praised abroad for "playing with the correct romantic inspiration," will be the guest of honor at a champagne reception in the Aula at Vassar College for all program donors immediately following the recital.

A native of Poughkeepsie, pianist Miller has made concert appearances in Austria, Belgium and Germany to wide critical acclaim, including such comments as "a born Brahms performer . . . perfect musical inner life . . . a new artistic personality . . . an exceptionally talented, sympathetic artist with a remarkably high understanding for the early romantic period."

She first appeared in public performance in 1956 with the Dutchess County Philharmonic Orchestra, directed by the late Ole Windigstad. A member of the Gotham Trio, she gave numerous recitals in New York and New England. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Sidney N. Miller of Poughkeepsie, she is a graduate of Sarah Lawrence College; has studied with such recognized teachers as Stanley Lock, Rudolf Firkusny, Walter Trampler and Earl Groves.

A Colorful Map For Outdoorsmen

Summer is the season for rugged outdoorsmen and even those not so rugged, in New York State. And this summer there should be no problem about what activity to choose and where to enjoy it.

To help in any decision making necessary, the State Conservation Department has just published an outdoor recreation map of New York. Designed to be used with any standard touring map of the Empire State, it indicates boat launching sites, public campsites, State parks, fish hatcheries, horse trails, and special use areas.

It also features fire towers, major hiking trails, historic sites, and the high peaks areas. In addition, it includes more exact printed instructions on how to get to these various spots.

The outdoor recreation map is aimed at helping outdoorsmen enjoy their summer. A copy is available by writing the State Conservation Department, Albany, N.Y. 12201.

GEORGE SEGAL stars in "LOVING," the movie about married couples of suburbia. Now playing at Kingston's Mayfair, the film co-stars Eva Marie Saint as his wife.

MOVIES

Loving

"Loving" is an acutely drawn portrait of one way of American life—that of the married couples of suburbia. It is territory that has been covered on screen before but seldom, perhaps, with such keen perception as here, and never, surely, with the sense of an almost elegiac sadness over the things observed.

A lot of people who go to see it at Kingston's Mayfair currently are going to recognize a lot of unpleasant aspects of not only other people they know but themselves. And while they may not like what they see, they cannot help but be impressed by its accuracy.

The couple front and center, played by George Segal and Eva Marie Saint, is typical yet unique. He's an illustrator after a big account (a trucking concern); other men in similar situations have flattered and cajoled potential employers but this one does it with a glibness underlaid by desperation that is all his own. Other wives have sought to halt the growing gulf with their husbands and to curb the petty bickering; this one does it with a sense of urgency that cuts to the quick.

These are very contemporary people; he drinks too much at business lunches in Manhattan; alienates people with drunken insults. She wants to buy a house but, looking it over, sees the unhappy resolution of another married couple's plight that could be her own; divorce.

Funny sequences ring just as true: breakfast with their impudent children, and a long party episode that's a microcosm of suburbia and its types.

Segal is fine as the hero; this is a splendidly detailed study of a man who "has it made" but still is in despair. And Miss Saint is superlative as the wife who resents the implication that she and the children and their home are a trap for her husband.

Directed with a sensitivity that captures the sense of alienation and frustration of the protagonists, this is an excellent film with exquisite color photography. It is strictly for adults, however; has received an R rating that restricts it for children and younger teenagers.

What Do You Say To a Naked Lady?

Allen Funt's "Candid

Camera" was one of those pieces of vintage mediocrity that proliferated in the early days of television. This is not to say that it did not have its dedicated fans. We watched it on occasion and, on occasion, even enjoyed it—in spite of the fact that publicly embarrassing situations are not really our idea of American humor at its best.

Now Funt, a has-been on TV, has turned his Candid Camera to what is probably the cleanest X-rated movie you'll ever see. It came by that restricted to adults only rating because Funt is concerned with human reactions to nudity and other phases of the sexual scene.

As the title promises, a parade of the naked—male and female—are exposed, with entirely predictable results, as the film unreeled currently at Kingston's Community. If you think it's amusing to see the reactions of men confronted by a naked lady emerging from an office-building elevator, briefcase in hand and asking for directions, then you'll be amused. If you think you'd enjoyed hearing three middle-aged women discuss a "dirty" movie they've seen, then this just might interest you.

But if peephole techniques irritate you, and if you might be as embarrassed as we were by a girl interviewer goes far to far in trying to persuade a horribly embarrassed young man to go to bed with her, you'll wish you stayed home.

Frankenstein Must Be Destroyed

There was a time in our life when we thoroughly enjoyed horror films. But "Frankenstein Must Be Destroyed," currently featured on the triple bill at the local 9-W Drive-In, is just another piece of sausage from a Hollywood mill that has produced more than 100 atmospheric horror films.

It will probably prove a tasty morsel of sausage for those who can still feel a delightful thrill at scenes of decapitation and dead men in formaldehyde. And for those who dig Dickensian stereotypes, it could be fun.

As for us, we have seen Frankenstein destroyed too many times in the past, only to find he somehow managed to outlive fire and flood and being buried alive.

Frankenstein Must Be

Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here

In this film, now showing at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema, Willie Boy (Robert Blake) is a young Indian who will not be tied to the Reservation, or consider himself less than a white man, in the America of 1902. Returning to his tribe in California to claim his sweetheart (Katherine Ross) he encounters trouble. Forced to kill in self-defense, he must flee across the desert with the girl—always one step ahead of capture by a rugged young sheriff (Robert Redford).

An interesting western, well done and with moving performances, it focuses on how Willie wins the respect and sympathy of the sheriff who must pursue him. It's rated for adults and mature young people; mainly because its two love affairs are off-beat.

Storm King: Unique Among All Hudson River Valley Museums

Storm King Art Center has initiated its 1970 exhibition season with its entire galleries filled with 100 paintings and shadow boxes by the American artist Leo Rabkin. His paintings are visions of great luminous forms floating in deep space. His shadow boxes are concentrated explosions of light and color held within large pristine plastic cubes or within small boxes that revealed unexpected visual delights. The exhibition is now open to the public through July 12.

Born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1919, Leo Rabkin began playing the violin at the age of 7 and spent 13 years studying music with the intent of becoming a professional violinist. On completion of his academic work at the University of Cincinnati, he served in the U.S. Army. After his return from service he received a Master's degree from New York University. In 1948, having decided to give up his music, he turned to concentrated work in the visual arts. He studied painting with Baziotis, Hale Woodruff, and Robert Idlehart in New York. Thus he embarked on a long and eventual exploration into the many facets of forms and colors and their changing intensities, tensions, and movements.

'Men from Shiloh'

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC's "The Virginian" series will begin its ninth season in the fall under a new title, "The Men from Shiloh." James Drury and Doug McClure, program veterans, will remain as the Virginian and Trampas, respectively. Stewart Granger and Lee Majors will be important new players on a regular basis. There will be greater use of guest stars of major caliber. The time element will be advanced about a decade into the 1890s.

Film star Glenn Ford joins television's comedy-drama ranks in the 1971-72 season in a weekly half-hour series to be made by 20th Century-Fox Television for the CBS network. No title yet, but Ford will play a detective sergeant who operates a juvenile center.

to him. Both his paintings and his shadow boxes are conceived basically as sculptural images. Acrylic paint, ravelled and stitched canvases, great plastic sheets, convex and concave mirrors, ancient beads strung on invisible nylon threads are some of the materials he utilizes to achieve new vistas in sculptural forms. The artist takes the onlooker on a voyage of discovery into a world of fantasy and visual surprises. Rabkin makes his own brief summation: "In my boxes and paintings I attempt to emphasize, through the suspension of weight, gravity and the variability of color and light, the intricate complexity of today's values and visual realities."

Rabkin has held 9 one-man shows and has been represented in many group shows throughout the U.S. However, the Storm King Art Center's extensive exhibition represents 17 years of his work, much of which is being shown there for the first time.

The Nook 'N' Cranny: It's Colorful & New

Canny shoppers will find lots of intriguing gifts by local craftsmen at a bright, new West Shokan shop. The scene at The Nook 'N' Cranny proliferates with such unusual embellishments as cornstalk dolls, colonial signs, and dried flower pictures and arrangements.

Nook 'N' Cranny has not actually opened its doors to the shopping public as yet, but a Tempo preview tour this week brought the feeling that when it does, local craftsmen will be serving up their choicest wares.

The idea behind the shop came from a belief by Bonnie Giacalone and Catherine Schetzel, both of West Shokan, that this area abounds with so many local people — all with unusual and varied talents — an outlet should be provided for the sale of their artistic and craftsmanlike products.

With that thought in mind, the two formed a partnership; began planning their first business venture early last winter. It will culminate in the opening of The Nook 'N' Cranny on Route 28A in West Shokan on Thursday, May 28. Opposite the waters of the Ashokan Reservoir, the shop will be housed in an old building remodeled by the two partners; will be open, after next Thursday, every Thursday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. through the Labor Day Weekend.

Some 30 local craftsmen will be offering browsers and buyers such solid attractions as oil paintings, watercolors, dried flower pictures and arrangements, ceramics, leaded glass bottles, colonial signs, and wedding and graduation centerpieces. Serious searchers may also find unique jewelry, handmade clothes and toys for children, afghans, cornstalk dolls, and a special "Christmas Corner" for all ages to enjoy.

The shop literally abounds with local talent, and local residents and visitors alike should enjoy seeing the many unusual items made by professional craftsmen and hobbyists who live and work locally. Supplying the shop with gifts that vary in price are craftsmen from Kingston, Woodstock, High Falls, Stone Ridge, West Hurley, Saugerties and other surrounding towns.

The Nook is loaded with colorful and rare items of interest for all ages, adults as well as children. Some are artistic and contemporary; others capture the nostalgia of a romantic past; still others are so rare they would be difficult to find anywhere else.

Turning hobbies into profit has proved a rewarding and interesting endeavor at The Nook 'N' Cranny. Tempo recommends a visit to this unique new emporium.

Motorists should take Route 28A at the junction of Route 28 and Route 28A at Boiceville. The shop is located about six miles in on Route 28A from Boiceville on the right. Watch for the sign at the Giacalone home adjacent to the shop on 28A near the mailbox with the name "Giacalone" on it.

Once there — and once inside — you'll be rewarded with the unique, the unusual, the rare and the new.

desolation for an even more loveless scene — Manhattan where he meets Dustin Hoffman, another loner. "Cowboy," now playing at the Orpheum in Saugerties, is a slick package about being loveless and lonely in New York. The acting of Hoffman and Voight is superlative; gives the film a sense of poignancy and reality. Vibrantly and vaultingly, the movie brings to life one of the most unlikely love stories in the history of the American cinema — but one that's for adults only.

FUNNY GIRL. At the Lyceum in Red Hook is this musical extravaganza with Barbra Streisand as the famed Fanny Brice and Omar Sharif as her husband, gambler Nick Arnstein. Streisand is but great! Whether singing, clowning, or emoting, she is simply a sensational super-star. Film is filled with skillful musical numbers; tastefully sumptuous over-all.

BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID. Paul Newman and Robert Redford play the title roles in a memorable tale of two legendary outlaws who take the ways of the Old West to Bolivia. On the double bill at Poughkeepsie's Overlook Drive-In, the film boasts a witty script that brings back the days of dime novels and the nickelodeon. Gleeful train robberies and a mysterious posse chase adds to the fun.

THE PRIME OF MISS JEAN BRODIE. Co-featured at the Overlook Drive-In is this very excellent film, for which star Maggie Smith won "Best Actress of the Year" designation and an Academy Award. She plays an Edinburgh schoolteacher — an unconventional one who sways her class of impressionable girls with her own distorted, romantic views of reality. It's rated for adults and mature young people. (By TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

DUSTIN HOFFMAN, who scored with his charm in "The Graduate," scores with his brilliant acting talent in "Midnight Cowboy," the box-office hit now playing at the Orpheum in Saugerties.

PAUL NEWMAN blows into town as Cassidy in "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." One of the best westerns ever, the film is currently featured on the double bill at Poughkeepsie's Overlook Drive-In.

His First Western

Fred Astaire, who has had some television exposure this season "It Takes a Thief," will appear in a western for the first time in one of the made-for-video films for ABC's "Movie of the Week" program. POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

A quick look-see at recent Dale Carnegie commencement program was enough to shake one's faith for-all-time in class prophecies. To foretell futures and be on-the-(crystal) ball 'bout Carnegie students' destinies, one had to be member of Kingston Class 13 or be clairvoyant, else one didn't have-the-foggiest. For instance: Bob Suchy and Marion Manton's prophecy that Kingston's Art Schupelack will fasten his seat belt next time he makes proposal to his wife??? . . . that Saugerties' Richard Kramer will air-condition whole pad so it won't matter if he leaves grub at "room temperature" . . . that, armed with new know-how on Winning Friends and Influencing People, Saugerties' Charlie Therrell will be MORE selective 'bout WHO picks HIM up! . . . that Shokan's Roger Scot will restrict skin-diving to bathtub during daylight hours only??? Why, it's enough to make poor-ole-Rog a bathtub-drop out!

As for prophecy that Wall-kill's Henry Torchio will quit banking and become success selling Corvairs, Edsels, Nash Hudsons, we'd like to insert one small footnote: Move over, Charlie Brown, you've got yourself a protege!

While soothsayers Suchy and Manton claim Saugerties' Vito Loschiavo will benefit from Carnegie memory session—henceforth removing napkin before leaving "posh" restaurants—historians Ted Levandowsky and Martin Horst put it another way: It's better to ASK for souvenir napkin than to try smuggling one out still tucked in belt. As for Kingston's George Zickler, prophets claim in '72 he'll nominate Nelson Rockefeller at GOP National Convention (but they didn't say for what). . . . And Kingston's Ali Aizer, we understand, is due to shift positions; he and Paul Geary will turn upholsterers to design red velvet, high-backed, SOFT-on-the-bottom chairs for future 14-week Carnegie sessions.

What a wealth of information was traded back 'n forth: future Nobel Prize nominee Larry Lawrence's advice on what to look for when judging guppies. . . . Champion George Gallagher's lessons on art of fencing. . . . Charlie Steele's first-hand ins-'n-outs of collecting antiques (nothin' second-hand 'bout Charlie). . . . John Tomaszewski's lesson on correct way of stocking grocery store shelves. . . . Bob Barringer's Emily Post method for using finger bowls—understand he intends to serve champagne in them at his wedding. . . . Chick Hutter's way of beatin' traffic tickets (which sometimes has a hitch, like if arresting officer's present in court).

What with students dubbed Bill Buck and Jim Rich, how could Class 13 be anything but lucky and prosperous? Shokan's Paul Berger, for one, is profiting. With newly acquired winning ways—using Huck Finn tactics—he's convincing wife how much fun it is to mow the lawn, wash the car, paint the house. . . .

Speakin' of Jim Rich, don't know if it's rumor or gospel but hear tell famed Daniel Boone was one of Jim's ancestors. . . . and all these years we credited that relationship to nimrod Ken Kittle, former assistant manager of recently terminated B & F Market. My stars! Another horoscope down-the-drain.

Slapstick for Children Boasts Sausages Like 'Clotheslines' And That Perennial Cream Pie

Nothing less than a prize-winning children's play is "The Servant of Two Masters." And why not, boasting, as it does, but scatterbrained Lady Isabella (Jo McKim Chalmers), arrives at the inn to arrange rooms for his mistress and himself. In a moment of rash bravado, he takes on a second job as servant to Florindo (Ron Radice), a handsome young nobleman also newly arrived at the inn. Neither master knows he has the same servant since Truffaldino disguises himself as an old man for Florindo's benefit.

All this and more go into "Masters," which has delighted youngsters in previous productions in New York City, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., and Kansas City, Mo. Now it's coming to Woodstock's Town Hall, opening Friday, May 29, for weekend runs through June 13.

Pantalone's Inn, "the finest in Venice," is the scene of the action. Rick Richards is the actor cast as short-tempered, stingy Pantalone, determined to marry his lovely daughter Columbina (Donna Albright) to a mean, elderly duke — unless she can find someone better. Aided by the chambermaid Francescina (Jaki Liss), Columbina seeks a Prince Charming to save her from the duke.

Meanwhile, Truffaldino (Ed that will keep children jumping out of their seats — a madcap clown-servant of aristocratic dinner scene, with mistaken identities, chases, mix-ups, and broken dinner dishes galore. And by the time this light-hearted comedy has run its course, it has been happily resolved for everyone but Truffaldino, the luckless clown who finally learns not to take on more than he can handle.

"Servant" is far from run-of-the-mill children's theatre. It is high quality fare for youngsters, based on Carlo Goldoni's comedy classic, adapted for children by author-director-choreographer Richard Mazza.

And it is Mazza who has designed this production, sponsored, cast and crewed by Performing Arts of Woodstock — to duplicate the style and zany spirit of the original Italian commedia troupes.

The result is slapstick fun.

Much of the play's delight that everything runs smoothly will come from its staging in once the curtain goes up.

Parents should know that "Servant" will be performed at 1:30 p.m. and again at 3:30 p.m. in Woodstock's Town Hall, beginning Friday, May 29 and continuing on Saturdays and Sunday through June 13. Tickets are now on sale at the box office, designed and executed by Elaine Vincent, with the assistance of Rusty Gibson and Bonnie Manka.

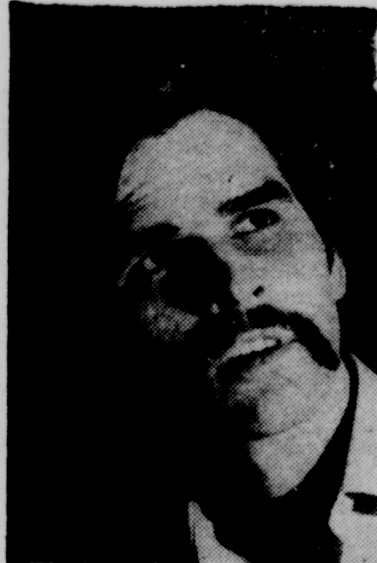

One of the most demanding jobs in the production has fallen to June Kane, who is handling the climactic dinner scene requires two 12-course dinners, including spaghetti that almost but not quite doesn't fall off the plate, sausages as long as clotheslines, soup, salad, and a most perilous cream pie. Assistant directors and co-stage managers, Yvette Madeira and Jerry Burke, have the no less difficult job of seeing no less difficult job of seeing from parents, too.

DONNA ALBRIGHT is the beautiful, lovelorn Columbina in "Servant of Two Masters."

EDWARD KRAMER has a romp as Truffaldino, the impish clown-hero who learns a lesson.

RON RADICE has been cast as Florindo, the handsome, young nobleman of the prize-winning play.

JO McKIM CHALMERS plays the charming, eccentric Lady Isabella in "Servant" at Woodstock.

RICK RICHARDS will be Pantalone, the short-tempered, ambitious Venetian inkeeper of the comedy.
